NEW DEAL PLAN FOR PERMANENT OPA IS CHARGED

Grocers Are Warned by Rep. Ploeser.

The New Deal is planning to "carry over OPA as a permanent post-war fixture in America," Rep. Walter C. Ploeser [R., Mo.] warned the food industry yesterday at the 46th annual convention of the National Association of Retail Grocers. While Ploeser urged that President Roosevelt be defeated, lest a fourth term destroy the Republic, P. M. Brinker of Dallas, Tex., president of the association, joined in assailing the office of price administration.

Slavery is the objective of the New Deal, said Ploeser, a member of the house small business committee, who said the Roosevelt administration envisioned an economic system based on the same strict controls found in Nazi Germany.

Small Business Fights for Life.

"The election this fall is our last chance to regain free enterprise in America," said Ploeser. "Small business is not fighting big business; it is fighting for its very life against government control, management, and regimentation, which would make every man a servant of the state.

"Do you want federal state food stores? Do you want some one in Washington forever telling you what you can buy, what you can sell, and how much you can pay or charge for it? Do you want a bureaucratic regime to supervise not only your economic, but also your personal life? Do you want a limitation on your ability to make enough money to send your children to school and college? Do you want your life and the lives of your families regulated by the federal state? These things are un-American, but they are typically New Dealish. I fear a fourth term will destroy the Republic.

Plan for Permanent OPA.

"There can be no doubt what the Roosevelt-inspired planners have in mind when they visualize the post-war scene. By their own words, they have dedicated themselves to retaining and extending every encroachment they have made upon the rights of free enterprise and of a free people. There are plans afoot to carry over OPA as a permanent post-war fixture in America."

Ploeser said that Chester Bowles, price administrator, was "rendering good service as a public relations expert for the New Deal Fascist doctrine" when he opposed congressional proposals designed to protect small business men.

Grocers' Work Made Difficult.

In his annual report as president of the association, which met in the Palmer House, Brinker recited difficulties placed upon grocers by regulations from Washington and added:

"The time has come when OPA, and all government agencies and officials, must take business and the consumer into their confidence, if they want respect for rationing, price control, or any other undertaking."

Returning war veterans must be given jobs, even if it means that stores abandon self-service and man power saving devices, said Mrs. R. M. Kiefer, secretary-manager of the association.

JUDGE EXTENDS BAN ON SLACKS TO TIELESS MEN

Indianapolis, Ind., June 4 (AP).—Superior Judge Emsley W. Johnson, who several months ago refused to hear a divorce case in which a woman witness wore slacks, has issued a new fashion edict.

The judge refused to hear a support case when the attorney, Howard Phillips, appeared without a necktie. Phillips dashed out, bought a blue four-in-hand with pink dots, and returned to present his case.

F. D. R. Will Discuss Fall of Rome on Radio Tonight

Washington, D. C., June 4 (AP).—President Roosevelt will discuss the fall of Rome in a 15 minute radio broadcast to the nation tomorrow night. The talk will be carried over the four major networks between 7:30 and 7:45 p. m., Chicago time. [Station W-G-N will broadcast the speech.]

Sees Husband and Daughter Die in Lake

Two persons were drowned and a third was reported missing after two accidents on Lake Michigan yesterday. The two deaths occurred when a kayak [Eskimo canoe] overturned in the lake off Dempster st., Evanston. The man reported missing was one of seven to 10 persons on a lake excursion sightseeing boat that hit a log and sank 400 yards from shore off Van Buren st. here.

Byrnina Harbison.

Oliver J. Harbison.

The dead in the kayak tragedy were Byrnina Harbison, 30, and her father, Oliver J. Harbison, 57, of 1326 Austin av., Cicero. Lt. [j. g.] Clyde L. Harbison, 30, of 1315 Oak st., Evanston, an instructor of midshipmen at Abbott hall of Northwestern university, was rescued.

Mother Sees Daughter Drown.

Mrs. Oliver J. Harbison, 57, wife and mother of the victims, and Lt. Harbison's wife, Inez, 28, were sitting on the beach and saw the kayak upset. They witnessed the rescue by the Wilmette coast guard and watched Evanston police and firemen attempt to revive the drowned woman with a pulmotor. Mrs. Oliver Harbison collapsed and was taken to Evanston hospital. She did not know last night that her daughter was dead.

Lt. Harbison was taken to Evanston hospital, where his condition was reported satisfactory. The coast guard continued searching the lake for the body of the elder Harbison, who was the lieutenant's uncle.

Six Passengers Rescued.

James Martin, operator of the excursion boat, a 30 foot craft, denied last night that more than six persons were aboard. Park police were told by other witnesses that three boys swam ashore from the boat after it capsized and Mrs. Wesley Lasan of 3801 Dearborn st. insisted that her husband, 39, a Negro, had started on the trip.

Sgt. John Fox of the park police said he had established that a Negro was aboard the craft when he interviewed Donald Stevenson, one of the rescued passengers, in Hammond last night. Stevenson said the Negro had a life preserver.

Two other boats owned by Martin rescued six passengers, who were treated at Passavant hospital and released. The six are: Virgil Goodrich, 17, of Mount Morris; Miss Donna Dew, 17, of route 2, Polo; Miss Annabelle Hill, 15, of Urbana; Mrs. Etta Stevenson, 42, of Hammond; Donald Stevenson, 22, her son; Raymond Stevenson, 17, her nephew.

FLYERS BOMB KURILE ISLES 5 DAYS IN ROW

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, June 4 (AP).—American bombers attacked the Kurile Islands on the northern approaches to Tokyo and Truk in the Central Pacific for the fifth consecutive day, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Three separate smashes were made before dawn Friday. Two fires were started on Shumushu, northernmost of the island chain. Paramushiro and Matsuwa were also hit.

Fires and explosions were started Saturday on Truk, major target in a two way aerial offensive against the Carolines by Central and South Pacific air forces. Ponape, eastern stronghold of the Carolines, was bombed Thursday from the north. Bombers from the south hit Friday at Truk, where the Japs sent up only two planes; Nomoi, Puluwat, and Woleai in the central and western Carolines.

Navy and marine planes smashed at by-passed Marshall Islands on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. Nauru, phosphate island southeast of the Carolines, was raided Friday.

In all attacks, Nimitz said, Japanese anti-aircraft fire ranged from moderate to none.

Invasion Blow Hint.

Five consecutive days of bombing attacks on the Kuriles renewed speculation on the possibility that an invasion blow against the Japanese homeland by that route may be impending.

Whether the raids—against Shumushu and Paramushiro at the north, Matsuwa farther down the line, and Shimushiri, nearly half way to Hokkaido—represent actual softening up ahead of landing forces is not fully apparent, however.

Two other major possibilities appear in explanation of the bombings:

1. The assaults may mean only that the air forces are taking advantage of favorable weather to harass the enemy bases.

2. The attacks may be part of the broad general campaign to force the Japanese back from their bases thruout the Pacific.

United States Subs Step Up Blows.

New York, June 4 (AP).—American submarines are hitting at least four times as hard at enemy shipping as in 1942, a study of official navy reports indicated today.

Announcements in the last five months listed 187 Japanese vessels sunk by United States submarines, an average monthly toll of 37.4.

By contrast, the average monthly rate of destruction in 1942 was approximately nine Jap ships. In 1943 it was about 23 ships.

In the American underseas raiders' bag of 573 enemy ships in 2½ years of war were 47 warships.

The fact that since January the Japs have lost four destroyers and a cruiser thru submarine attacks may indicate Japan has adopted convoy operations.

The total war time "catch" in far eastern and Pacific waters of submarines, other than American, is upward of 50 enemy vessels, including at least six warships.

YO! HO! HO! AND A BAG OF MAIL!

Johnston in Moscow Jibes at U. S. Reds

MOSCOW, June 4 (AP).—Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in an address made to soviet trade leaders yesterday and released today, urged that Russians and Americans reconcile themselves to different economic systems and carry on a flourishing business.

Eric Johnston.

The speech, probably the frankest and most provocative ever made in Moscow by a private individual, was at a luncheon given by Anastas I. Mikoyan, soviet trade commissar, and issued by Johnston today at a press conference.

Johnston prefaced his speech by warning the Russians, "I am going to tell you direct, harsh business facts."

No Outlook for Change.

"In economic ideology, the practice of my country is different from yours," he said. "You are state minded, collective minded. We are most private minded, most individual minded and, gentlemen, make no mistake, we are determined to remain so or even to become more so."

He told the Russians to "realize how completely our American Communists have been wasting their time."

In a recent poll, he said, most organized workers answering a question as to their social class replied, "middle class."

"So perhaps in a way you cannot blame our American Communists for their failure," he said. "If I may put it frankly, how can they make a proletarian revolution among workers who do not even know they are proletarians?

A Sympathetic Sneeze.

"Our American Communists haven't caught onto this fact. They lack originality and realism. They still follow and imitate what they think is your current policy. If you take pepper, they sneeze. If you have indigestion, they belch. They annoy our trade unions much more than they annoy our employers.

"I think each of our two countries should be allowed to pursue its own economic experiment, unimpeded by the other."

Speaking of a "gulf" between the nations, he said three "bridges of practical coöperation can be thrown across it:

1. "Our common determination to bring Hitler and fascism to an end.

2. "Our common passion for production.

3. "The bridge of export and import trade."

Elaborating on the second point Johnston said:

"Some of you, I know, thought our private enterprise system which you think too chaotic, could not produce the necessary goods for this war. Some of us, I know, thought your state enterprise system would utterly fail to produce the necessary volume. We were both mistaken."

He suggested that Russian raw material and American machines "have no ideologies."

"They could be mediators and interpreters between us humans," he added.

While the speech was read in Russian nearly 100 Russians listened first in silence, then in laughter, and finally in applause.

MORE THAN 9,686 AMERICANS KILLED IN BATTLE TO WIN ROME

Washington, D. C., June 4 (AP).—The battle for Rome, from the time the allies swept onto the Italian peninsula last Sept. 3, cost the lives of more than 9,686 Americans.

Secretary of War Stimson reported last Thursday that the casualties in the Italian campaign from the date of the landing to May 28 totaled 55,150, including 9,686 killed, 36,910 wounded and 8,554 missing.

Many others have been killed, wounded or lost since then. Thousands died in North Africa and in Sicily to pave the way for the direct attack on Italy.

Pawnbrokers Do All Right in These Days

Despite war time employment and high wages the business of hocking the family jewelry is on the increase and Chicago pawnbrokers are having their biggest boom in years.

This was disclosed in a survey yesterday among pawnshop operators, who said their business is about 50 per cent higher than it was 10 years ago and that 50 per cent of the customers today are war workers. During normal times, the brokers said, redemptions were about 40 per cent but today from 75 to 85 per cent of the pledges are being redeemed.

"A Lot of New People."

"We still have our habitual pawners," said a broker who has operated an establishment in South State st. for 35 years, "but we have a lot of new people coming in now. Most of them wear war workers' badges."

Gambling compels many war workers to pawn articles, one broker said. "This is true among women as well as men," he added. "The money comes easy and they let it get away from them the same way."

Many of the items being pawned were acquired during the buying panic just before rationing and are quality merchandise. Articles which cannot be bought in stores today are found in abundance on pawnshop shelves.

War workers secure most of their loans with diamond rings or expensive wrist watches.

They Always Have a Reason.

"For some reason they always explain why they have to borrow money when they are making from $85 to $100 a week," one veteran broker said. "One woman said her husband wouldn't be paid for another week and she had to have money to call a doctor to see two sick children. Another man blamed a pickpocket for his dilemma. One honest soul confessed that he had a hankering for taverns and gambling."

Service men do only a small percentage of the borrowing and in most cases are quick redeemers. They often pawn their watches to buy tickets back to camp after furloughs.

Unlike Last World War.

"It wasn't like this during the last World war," a broker said as he looked over his stock of radios, golf clubs, electric equipment, cameras, and expensive jewelry. "Last time it was mostly Liberty loan bonds, which were transferable and which most brokers kept."

All pawnshop operators agreed that people should be saving more money and borrowing less. "Even the pawnbroker would be better off in the long run," one admitted.

FORCE FROM ANZIO BEACH FIGHTS TO HEART OF CITY

Tribune Man Tells of Hard Drive Up Via Casilina.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH 5TH ARMY ADVANCE ELEMENTS IN ROME, Italy, June 4.—We have arrived at Rome along the Via Casilina. The enemy is pulling out to the north of the city what men and material he can tonight. On the Appian way—the other historic road to Rome—he still is battling against our armor which wants to annihilate him before it moves into the city.

Our reception by the citizens of Rome is yet to come. It is unlikely that it will be the riotous welcome accorded us at Naples, for the Roman is not by nature as emotional as the Neapolitan.

Never So Long a Road.

But however that may be, to the allied soldiers coming into Rome tonight and to those who will come tomorrow this is history. Never before has Rome been conquered from the south. Never before have the warriors who came to the gates traveled so long a road—from El Alamein, from Casablanca and Oran, across the African desert and plain, across Mediterranean and Tyrrhenian water and up the incredible, rugged peaks of the boot of Italy.

As we pushed up the Via Casilina [highway 6] the dome of St. Peter's, cathedral could be seen, golden in the calm Italian sunshine.

The Germans in their retreat left dead and prisoners and guns and booty. They displayed a last flicker of bitter resistance, counter-attacking with what they still had of artillery.

Begin Leaving in Night.

Italians who came from the heart of Rome this morning told me of the enemy, thru the night, pulling to the north of Rome.

He attempted to make our entrance as costly as he could as he tried his best to protect his flank on the other highway—the Appian way—and to disengage as many men as he could before our armored columns, moving on that road, could reach the city.

All along the Via Casilina our tanks and big guns were moving up, brushing aside low hanging tree branches. Our infantry deployed across the fields with rifles and tommy guns.

On Last Lap of Drive.

German 170 millimeter shells and 88s from the self-propelled guns cracked onto the road and the fields. Several of our tanks were knocked out, some crew members killed and others wounded.

Our armor searched out those guns and pounded in the direction from which the fire seemed to be coming.

And, amazingly, thru all this fighting, Italian civilians strolled about in what remains of their Sunday finery. They told me of the Germans taking all the clothing and food they could before leaving.

Bridal Party Walks Thru.

A bridal party walked down the highway in full view of enemy sharpshooters, but did not draw a shot. The bride was a pretty blonde, the bridegroom had dark, curly hair, and they came from their vows in a little church with no thoughts of war in their glances. There were seven more in the party, all laughing and jesting.

The executive officer for our tank force was Lt. Col. Henry E. Gardiner, Chicago attorney whose office is at 20 N. Wacker dr.

With the first light today a column of Sherman tanks commanded by Capt. John Beale of Rockford, Ill., started on the last lap into Rome.

"I hope I can visit St. Peter's Sunday," remarked Infantry Chaplain Lt. John T. Beyenka of 3248 Warner av., Chicago.

Last night German bombers and artillery smashed at the Via Casilina for hours trying to interdict it and hold up our pursuit toward Rome. But our men and material moved steadily.

Starting out this morning, we raced many miles up the Via Casilina, until we came to the outskirts where enemy fire halted us.

Smashes Last Nazi Armored Car at Bank of Italy.

Turn to back page for colored map of the Rome theater of war and first pictures of allied troops entering the liberated Italian capital. Other maps appear on page 2.

ROME, June 4 (AP).—Rome, the Eternal City, was liberated tonight by tanks and infantry troops of the allied 5th army which battled German rear guards to the edge of the ancient Forum.

A force from the old Anzio beachhead completed the mop-up of Nazi forces at 9:15 p. m. (2:15 p. m., Chicago war time) by knocking out an enemy scout car in front of the Bank of Italy, almost within the shadow of the column erected to Emperor Trajan, who ruled the Romans from 98 to 117 A. D.

The 5th army force fought its way into the heart of the city after a four hour battle against German armor in the suburbs. German self-propelled guns, tanks, and sharpshooters impeded the allies' progress thru the suburbs toward the center of the city.

Push on to North.

The city of seven hills was the first axis capital to fall to allied troops who were pursuing the Germans north of Rome with the aid of swarms of allied planes battering at Nazi transport columns.

Shortly after 3:30 p. m. the Germans began a frenzied series of demolitions inside Rome. Huge clouds of smoke plumed above the city.

[Naples headquarters said the mop-up was by American and Canadian troops. Fifth army troops were reported sweeping on northward in pursuit of the Germans. The Germans had made some demolitions and the British radio said this indicated the Germans "probably had destroyed the bridges over the Tiber river." Across the Tiber lies Vatican City. East of Rome the Germans had withdrawn into the Sabine mountains, northeast of Valmontone in the area above Palestrina. The allied 8th army was attacking in that sector.]

American and other armored troops flowed thru the heart of Rome's governmental district, snuffing out the last bits of German resistance almost four years after Benito Mussolini plunged his countrymen into war against France on the side of Germany.

Gen. Clark in Action.

Early in the afternoon Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the 5th, arrived in the fighting area. Bullets whizzed over his head. Military police accompanying him fired on the sharpshooters.

The Germans apparently were bent on inflicting as many casualties and doing as much damage as possible, but the 5th army poured heavy reënforcements into the showdown fight. The day was hot and dusty.

[Behind a doubled Swiss guard sealing off Vatican City, Pope Pius XII. held urgent consultations on Sunday with the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Maglione, and played in his private chapel, the London Daily Mail's Madrid cor- respondent reported. No one was allowed to leave or enter the Vatican without a special pass. The pope has been a virtual prisoner in the Vatican since the Germans seized control of Rome last July.]

Bomb Fleeing Vehicles.

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, June 4 (AP).—Allied planes today wrecked or damaged at least 600 motor vehicles carrying the fleeing German army from the Eternal City. The huge air toll of Nazi transports was taken on congested roads beyond Rome.

The enemy made it a battle every foot of the way thru the suburbs into Rome to block the 5th army at least until they could pull out more of their own forces.

Asked Civilian Aid.

The allied command had called on Romans to save the historic metropolis from destruction, and to keep highways open so the allies could push on thru "without delay to continue the destruction of the German armies farther north."

The break into Rome, center of Catholicism and once the seat of the ancient Roman empire, came 24 days after the allies unleashed a powerful combined offensive of the 5th and 8th armies, and 12 days after 5th army men on the Anzio beachhead hurled forth their power drive aimed at the capital.

The Germans still were suffering huge losses of men and equipment, and for the second day 1,000 prisoners were taken, swelling the 5th army total alone to 15,000 in the 24 days of the campaign. Both armies together have taken more than 20,000.

Headquarters said the Germans still were resisting between the Alban hills, where new heights were seized, and the Tiber flowing into the sea 16 miles west of Rome.

Sweep Thru Alban Towns.

On their way to the capital's gates, allied troops in the Alban hills swept thru the town of Nemi near Lake Nemi, swarmed over the high peaks of Mount Ceraso and Mount Colletano, and pushed on toward the town of Rocca di Papa, 12 miles southeast of Rome.

One German battalion lost 120 men killed and 60 captured in one engagement in the Alban mountain pass.

Pounding north of Valmontone on the Via Casilina, other doughboys seized Cave on a road paralleling that highway. This closed a "back door" for the Germans, and won a hillside reported as a site of great ammunition and gasoline dumps.

The 5th army advanced north of Via Casilina toward highway No. 5, strategic lateral road running eastward from Rome to the Adriatic coast.

Move Beyond Via Casilina.

The British 8th army to the southeast continued its advance after its junction with other American and French troops below Valmontone.

Frenchmen captured Colleferro three miles east of Valmontone, and the 5th and 8th armies formed a junction along the Via Casilina southeast of Valmontone.

French troops also swarmed thru Sgurgola, on a road leading north to the Via Casilina, pushed thru Segniz and took Colle Piso.

New Zealanders advancing north and west of Frosinone seized Alatri on the Via Macerosa, and Canadians made contact with the right wing of British forces.

Front dispatches described a trail of German dead, wrecked tanks, guns, and trucks along the Via Casilina; billowing clouds of dust, and thoro Nazi pillage by seizing or destroying foodstuffs, livestock, and small personal possessions of the populace, apparently with intent of giving the allies the severest possible relief problem.

Lash at Retreating Columns.

Lashing at the Nazi columns retreating from Rome, allied fighter bombers found "excellent targets in congested traffic" above the city to Viterbo, Lake Bracciano, and Lake Bolsena, headquarters said.

Wellingtons and Liberators bombed a bridge over the Tiber, at a key spot on one of the few good roads for enemy retreat northwestward. The bridge connects the main road running parallel with the Tiber from Rome to the sea. Hits were scored at or near road junctions at both ends of the span.

Bomber crewmen reported large fires near Lido di Roma.

Medium, light, and fighter bombers battered other dumps and roads, destroying 100 motor vehicles and damaging 127. Hurricanes sank or damaged 10 small vessels in the Livorno [Leghorn] and Piombino area.

GERMAN WAR REPORT

LONDON, June 4 (AP).—The German high command bulletin as broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press said:

"Yesterday the enemy continued his violent attempts at breaking thru with the support of strong tanks and battle flyer formations north of the Alban hills on both sides of Via Casilina.

"In extremely heavy fighting, the enemy, with great losses, succeeded in pushing our barrage front back into the area 10 kilometers [6¼ miles] east of Rome.

"In an heroic struggle the defenders of Monte Cave at Rocca di Papa smashed all attacks made by the far superior enemy all day long against those key positions. Only when the last shot was fired did the garrison withdraw to our own lines according to orders.

"West of the Alban hills our troops detached themselves toward the Tiber. The widening of the enemy gap toward the northeast was prevented in tough fighting by garrisons of our strong points at Zagarolo and Palestrina.

"Also on both sides of Cave and in front of the sector south of Paliano all enemy attacks failed in heavy defense struggles.

"Bombers and night battle planes again effectively attacked enemy columns and deployments in the area of Valmontone last night. In the sector north of Frosinone the enemy was only able to follow our movements of detachment slowly as a result of thoroly carried out destructions of the roads.

"On the east bank of the Liri north of Sora repeated strong enemy attacks were repulsed. One break was sealed off.

"Naval convoy escorts repulsed an enemy motor torpedo boat attack off the western Italian coast and damaged several enemy boats. German motor torpedo boats operating in the Adriatic sank four enemy supply vessels off Split and captured numerous prisoners. In the ensuing skirmish with enemy artillery boats they damaged several of these heavily armed and armored vessels."

TROOPS MOVED NORTHWEST OF ROME, NAZIS SAY

LONDON, June 4 (AP).—Adolf Hitler announced tonight in two special statements broadcast after allied troops had liberated Rome—the withdrawal of German troops to the northwest of the city and that the allies had been offered a plan whereby Rome would be regarded as an "open city."

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring.

In the first word from the Fuehrer's headquarters in several days it was asserted the fight in Italy would continue and that measures were being taken "to force final victory for Germany and her allies."

The order to evacuate German troops from the city, it was said, was intended "to prevent the destruction of Rome."

Offered at 11 P. M. Saturday.

The German radio said Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had submitted to the Vatican proposals to make Rome an open city with a request that they be conveyed to the allies, but that "so far no reply has been received from the Anglo-American high command."

The proposals were said to have been advanced at 11 p. m. Saturday. This was less than 24 hours before Rome changed hands.

German radio commentators immediately began a campaign to minimize the fall of Rome. A typical comment was:

"Abandonment of Rome is a considerable gain from a military point of view. All other considerations apart, supply of the town with its million inhabitants, to which some 30,000 to 40,000 refugees must be added, would be a very heavy strain on the German army. The allied high command now will have to take charge of the supply of the Roman population."

Promises to Remove Troops.

The German broadcasts said Kesselring's proposals "confirmed recognition of Rome as an open city," and stated the boundaries of the area. The proposals then said:

"The German high command undertakes to keep no military installations or troops within the confines of the open city and undertakes to carry out no troop movements in Rome.

"Excepted from this condition are those authorities and police forces necessary for the maintenance of law and order and for supply of the town.

"No destruction shall be carried out inside the area of the open town. Stores of supply goods shall be put at the disposal of the civilian population.

"After the evacuation of the town by the German troops, Rome shall be supplied with water and electricity from supply installations used so far provided they are in possession of the German army.

"A condition for acceptance of these proposals is the full assurance that they will be mutually observed. The supreme German commander, moreover, has suggested to ask the Vatican to make arrangements for the appropriate control of observation of the above points of the agreement.

"So far no reply has been received from the Anglo-American high command concerning these proposals.

"Instead Gen. Alexander has asked the citizens of Rome to offer armed resistance to German troops."

ROME'S HISTORY FULL OF BATTLE AND CONQUERORS

City Fought Over Since 8th Century B. C.

Rome, in her 3,000 year history as a cross-roads, successively, of Latium, the Roman empire, and the Italian empire, many times has fought strangers battering at her defenses or watched them march thru her streets.

Rome was only a poor village of straw huts when, possibly in the 8th century B. C., Sabine people from the central mountains began to dispute the rule of the hills and plains near the lower Tiber with the tribes which had come down from Tuscany about two centuries earlier.

Etruscans Once Pushed Out.

The Etruscans, a relatively advanced people who had come to Italy from Asia, gained control of Rome probably in the 6th century B. C.

The Etruscan kings, the Tarquins, were ejected about 509 B. C., but Rome was attacked again and again by the Etruscans and their allies and probably was captured and held for a time by Lars Porsena of Clusium, an Etruscan prince, around 500 B. C.

The city had a relatively peaceful time for the next century, when her power and prestige flourished, but in 390 B. C. she barely escaped destruction at the hands of the Gauls. The Roman army was defeated and the city lay at the invaders' mercy. However, they halted to celebrate their victory for three days and the Romans improvised defenses. The Gauls withdrew after seven months but had sacked most of the city.

Endangered by Carthage.

Soon after this siege, Rome recovered and became greater than ever. Most of Italy was consolidated under her rule and her influence grew. In the second and third centuries B. C. she fought three wars with Carthage and emerged in 146 B. C. the undisputed mistress of the western world.

For several centuries, Rome's dangers came principally from within. The change from a republic to an empire and the contests for power among the city's own elements resulted in occasional civil commotion.

The 3d century A. D., however, was rich in signs of the ruin to come. Civil war, increasing misery among the people, and a serious diminution of the vitality which had extended Rome's sway over a huge portion of the known world, prepared the way for a gradual breakup of the empire.

Barbarians Break In.

Reforms were instituted and collapse was postponed, but barbarians swarmed on the frontiers and by the 5th century were breaking in.

Alaric and his Visigoths sacked Rome in 410. Attila the Hun descended into Italy as far as Lombardy in 452 but Rome was spared. Vandal invaders under Gaiseric, [Genseric] captured Rome in 455 and the empire died.

From the end of the empire to 1870 internal dissensions and external wars gave Rome more than her share of turmoil.

French Also Seized City.

Probably the city's most dreadful experience during this period came in 1527, when 30,000 German and Spanish troops overran the city. The French entered Rome in 1798, partly with the cooperation of Romans, who welcomed them as an army of democracy and liberation. In 1808 French troops again occupied the city to depose the papal authorities because of Napoleon's hostility to them.

The entry of Italian troops into Rome on Sept. 20, 1870, was of the first importance because it signalized the first unification of Italy in modern times. An occupation of the city no less important in its bearing on history took place 52 years later. This was the Fascist "march on Rome" of Oct. 30, 1922, which ended the constitutional monarchy.

Cadet Capt. Henry E. Doney III. gets kiss from Miss Marilyn Olson at Morgan Park ceremony.

Medals were awarded by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE yesterday afternoon to two outstanding cadets of the Morgan Park Military academy before an audience of 500 on the campus parade grounds. Cadet 1st Sgt. Don A. Moore, 17, of 14701 S. Cicero av., Midlothian, received a gold medal, and Cadet Cpl. Jack M. Sharp, 17, Dayton, O., a silver medal.

The presentation was made by Philip Maxwell, of THE TRIBUNE'S editorial staff. Supt. Harry D. Abells and Lt. Col. Haydn Jones, assistant superintendent, congratulated the cadets.

Another high spot in the ceremony was the guidon presentation, made by Maj. C. G. Tyler, the school's commanding officer. The guidon went to company A, commanded by Cadet Capt. Henry E. Doney III., 17, of 5240 Sheridan rd. Doney got more than a handshake—a kiss from his best girl, Miss Marilyn Olson, 17, of 11221 Hermosa av., senior in Morgan Park High school.

Another academy man honored was Cadet Sgt. Robert D. Timberlake, 16, of 10604 Drew st., who received a medal for being the best drilled cadet.

ALLIES' FIRST JOB IN ROME IS PROVIDING FOOD

Second Is Setting Up New Government.

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—Capture of Rome confronted the allies today with two immediate problems—the delivery of food and relief supplies in huge quantities and the reorganization of the Italian government.

Both problems have been under study here as well as in London and at headquarters in Italy and officials were confident they would be tackled with all possible speed. Diplomatic and military officials here had expected the liberation of the city for several days and while obviously delighted that it had been achieved, they had no immediate comment.

The first step in reorganization of the Italian government will be the retirement of King Victor Emmanuel. He promised several weeks ago that upon the liberation of the Italian capital he would move into the background and appoint as his successor, Crown Prince Umberto.

American officials have accepted that promise quite literally and believe the king's fulfillment of it should be forthcoming soon.

Once Umberto takes office, experts on Italian political affairs here said, Premier Badoglio and his cabinet will resign. Umberto is expected to reappoint him and his coalition government.

Timetable of Allied Drive to Rome

Here is a chronology of the Italian campaign:

Sept. 3, 1943—Montgomery's British 8th army, including Canadians, invades the toe of Italy across Messina strait from Sicily; secret military armistice with Italy signed in Sicily, effective Sept. 8.

Sept. 8—Gen. Eisenhower announces Italy's unconditional surrender.

Sept. 9—Clark's 5th army of Americans and Britons lands at Salerno.

Sept. 10—Germans seize Rome; allies occupy Taranto.

Sept. 12—Germans announce they had freed Mussolini.

Sept. 14—Fifth and 8th armies establish contact after fighting at Salerno which fell Sept. 11; 80 Italian ships, including five battleships, surrender in allied ports.

Sardinia and Corsica.

Sept. 20—Germans announce evacuation of Sardinia; French, with some United States troops, land on Corsica.

Sept. 28—Eighth army occupies Foggia's air bases.

Oct. 1—Naples falls.

Oct. 3—Fifth army wins Benevento; 8th lands at Termoli on Adriatic next day.

Oct. 13—Italy declares war on Germany after Premier Badoglio and king elude Germans in Rome and escape to south Italy.

Oct. 14—Fifth army crosses Volturno.

Nov. 30—British cross Sangro river.

Dec. 21 to Jan. 21, 1944—In slow, bitter fighting British cross lower Garigliano river; Americans and French close in upon Cassino on main road to Rome; Canadians take Ortona on Adriatic.

Jan. 22—Fifth army troops land at Anzio.

Bomb Cassino Abbey.

Feb. 15—Allied planes attack Benedictine abbey atop Monte Cassino; ground attack on Cassino fails.

March 15—Allied planes raze Cassino but fail to dislodge Germans.

May 5—Allied planes wreck Pescara dam.

May 11—Eighth and 5th armies launch big drive between Cassino and Tyrrhenian sea.

May 18—Cassino falls.

May 23—Anzio forces launch attack.

May 25—Both fronts merge into single line moving on Rome.

June 2—Velletri and Valmontone fall.

June 4—Rome captured.

BUS PASSENGER LOSES ARM.

Edward LeVandowski, 17, of 2819 S. Throop st. underwent amputation of an arm yesterday at Holy Cross hospital after his arm was injured when he held it out the window of a bus in 63rd st. near Lavergne av. and it struck a telephone pole.

JAPS PUSH AHEAD IN 2 DRIVES TO RING CHANGSHA

Minor Successes Reported by Chinese.

CHUNGKING, China, June 4 (AP).—Japanese troops have plowed thru Sinshih and stabbed six miles beyond the town toward Changsha. Another column in the Hunan province offensive has attempted an assault toward Liuyang, 30 miles to the east, for an encircling movement against Changsha, a Chinese bulletin announced tonight.

Possession of Liuyang would enable the invaders to attack Changsha over mostly flat country. The Japanese column struck southward yesterday from the Pingkiang area toward Liuyang and tried to cross the hilly region 20 miles to the northeast, but was stopped there by the Chinese, the bulletin said. The fighting continued.

Heavy Fighting Rages.

At the same time heavy fighting raged south of the Milo river along a 30-mile front as enemy columns east of the Canton-Hankow railway continued to drive slowly along the route. Sharp encounters also were reported southwest of Pingkiang, where the enemy split into two columns, one for the drive on Liuyang, the other aimed directly southwest toward Changsha, 50 miles from Pingkiang. This line extended from a point six miles west of Pingkiang to 12 miles south of the town.

The new strategy placed the left wing of the invader's main body now 40 miles east northeast of Changsha, field dispatches said. Directly from the north, the Japanese pushed to a point within 35 miles of the objective.

Right Wing Repulsed.

There was no mention in the Chinese bulletin of the situation directly west of the Canton-Hankow railway. The Chinese were last reported to have halted the invader at Kweiyi, about 40 miles north of Changsha.

The Japanese right wing advancing in the Hupeh-based drive into the north of Hunan province was repulsed at Hanshow, 20 miles south of the rice bowl city of Changteh, the bulletin said. Changteh is 100 miles northwest of Changsha.

Tonight the Chinese high command, in a special bulletin, announced recapture of Ansiang, on the northwestern shore of Tungting lake, Japanese base in northern Hunan. More than half the Japanese garrison was annihilated, the announcement said. The remaining Japanese were reported to have fled westward.

In Honan province, 400 miles to the north of the Hunan battle area, the Chinese war bulletin said the enemy was being pursued northward, after recapture of Sunghsien.

The city is 45 miles southwest of Loyang, northern citadel occupied by the Japanese.

Three Children and Wife See Chicagoan Drown

Joseph C. Czarnik, 30, of 1314 Moorman av., was drowned in Hericks lake, five miles southwest of Wheaton, yesterday afternoon. In a rowboat with his wife, Helen, and their three children, Czarnik jumped into the water and sank. The body was recovered.

JAPAN FACES BIG LOSS IN BURMA, ALLIES ASSERT

Situation Satisfactory, Says Headquarters.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, June 4 (AP).—Results of the allied Indo-Burma campaigns "can be regarded with satisfaction, tho not with complacence," an official headquarters summary said today.

Expressing guarded optimism, the review said the arrival of the monsoons had brought only a little slackening of aerial and ground operations, and added:

"To the Japanese, Burma shows signs which must appear ominous of becoming a dangerous running sore, draining away men and supplies, whose reenforcement and replacement will grow more costly and difficult as allied pressure increases."

All operations, including those in Arakan, of Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Americans, Chinese and Chindits, and the Jap thrust in Assam, "have proved that now, in equipment, training, toughness and endurance, the troops of the united nations are more than a match for the Japanese," the summary said.

Today's headquarters' bulletin reported allied troops had forced the Japs to abandon some positions northwest of the Indian town of Kohima.

On the Imphal front, south of Kohima, the enemy was forced from a hill southwest of Bishenpur and operations to clear Jap pockets north and northwest of Bishenpur continued. The Japs left many dead after the hill battle.

No mention was made of the north Burma fighting for Myitkyina, probably because of weather interference with army signals.

Chungking reported that on the Yunnan-Salween river front a mountain crest 18 miles northeast of the Jap base of Tengchung has been captured by Chinese forces.

Gen. Stilwell's headquarters said: "Chinese forces captured Kaitou, north of Tengchung. Hundreds of Japanese at Chiatou cut off from their main supply route face annihilation."

YANKS DEDICATE GRAVEYARD OF MEN AND SHIPS

Washington, D. C., June 4 (AP).—"In memory of the men of the United States navy and allied navies who gave their lives—Iron Bottom bay—1942-'43—Dedicated by members of the Iron Bottom Bay club—Port Purvis, Solomon Islands—20 March, 1944."

That inscription, engraved on a bronze plaque, the navy said today, is the only battle memorial erected thus far in the Solomons.

It was dedicated at ceremonies on a palm studded hill overlooking Purvis bay on Florida Island, near Iron Bottom Bay club, an officers' recreation center.

In the bay below nearly half a million tons of shipping are on the bottom, literally paving the bay with iron of American and Japanese men o' war.

Tribute to the men who died in the naval engagements fought off shore was paid by Rear Adm. Robert W. Hayler, Muncie, Ind., who participated in the last sea action in Iron Bottom bay—the battle of Tassafaronga, Nov. 30, 1942.

American ships sunk there include the cruisers Astoria, Quincy, Vincennes, Atlanta, Juneau, Northampton, and Chicago; destroyers Jarvis, Blue, Duncar, Barton, Cushing, Laffey, Monssen, Preston, Walke, Benham, De Haven, and Aaron ward.

With those American ships, there lie on the bottom 31 Japanese craft, including two battleships.

禁ず "Verboten!" 禁ず

(Both the German word and the Japanese characters mean the same thing, "Forbidden", the dictatorial denial of freedom to be seen everywhere in Axis territory.)

WE DON'T enjoy disappointing our friends—and you can take our word for it that it's no fun to learn that we may expect a month from now something you need and want today. But we can assure you that we, and every other good store, as well as our sources of supply, are doing our utmost to meet your requirements—within the inescapable limitations imposed by the paramount necessity for first winning the War.

And perhaps we might all temper our impatience if we were to reflect that however long we may have to wait for something—it would take a lot longer to learn German—and longer still to learn Japanese.

PSORIASIS

It's always a tragedy when an attractive woman must dress not to enhance her charm—but to conceal her unsightly psoriasis lesions. Is that YOUR problem? If so, then why not try SIROIL? SIROIL tends to remove the crusts and scales of psoriasis which are external in character and located on the outer layer of the skin. If or when your psoriasis lesions recur, light applications of SIROIL will help keep them under control. Applied externally, SIROIL does not stain clothing or bed linen, nor does it interfere in any way with your daily routine. Try it. Certainly it's worth a trial, particularly since it's offered to you on a two-weeks' satisfaction - or - money - refunded basis.

NIGHT BOMBINGS FOLLOW RAID BY DAY ON EUROPE

Heavy Craft Blast Links from France to Italy.

LONDON, June 5 [Monday]—(AP).—R. A. F. bombers battered targets in enemy occupied Europe again last night, the British announced today, taking up the nonstop offensive after 1,200 American heavy bombers had struck the continent daylight blows from bases in Britain and Italy yesterday. Specific objectives were not announced.

In yesterday's assaults some 500 United States bombers pounded German strongholds along the French invasion coast, while another armada from the Mediterranean made a strong attempt to sever two main rail lines between Italy and France.

The United States army air forces announced that four heavy bombers and three fighters were missing from three raids yesterday against Nazi transport lines and airdromes in occupied France. One German plane was reported shot down.

For the second straight day the Fortresses and Liberators returned from France without loss after pounding defenses around Boulogne with 1,500 tons of bombs.

Staff Sgt. James Benike, Madison, Wis., and Lt. Henry Rosine, St. Joseph, Mich., were middle west flyers who participated in the raids near Boulogne.

Spitfire bombers and fighters hammered enemy radio installations along the northern coast of France this evening and the air ministry announced that more links in the Nazi radio chain had been broken.

Hit Double Track Artery.

Between 500 and 750 15th air force heavy bombers swept up from Italy to attack such vital rail centers as Turin and Genoa.

One force hit the Turin yards, the double track Mount Cenis railroad leading west from Turin to Lyon, France, the Gad bridge on the Italian side of the Modane tunnel thru the Alps, and tracks near St. Michel on the French side.

Other bombers singled out the Riviera line, bombing a viaduct southwest of Cannes and the Var river bridge, southwest of Nice. Other formations hit the Genoa railyards and the Recco viaduct to the east.

Yards at Novi Legure, 25 miles north of Genoa, and the harbor at Savona, 25 miles west of Genoa, also were targets.

For the third straight day four-engined bombers from Britain aimed two blows at the belt of fortifications which Hitler has thrown up on the French shores.

Havocs Also Hit Coast.

Military objectives along the coast of France also were bombed by 9th air force Marauders and Havocs under a fighter screen. One group hit a highway bridge at Courcelles-sur-Seine, 40 miles northwest of Paris.

Thunderbolt fighter-bombers attacked two bridges over the Seine at Rouen and railroad tracks and junctions at Creil, Crepy, and other parts of the Oise valley. Col. Gilbert Meyers, Milford, Ia., led the attack on the bridges.

TELL HOW U. S. RAIDS SLASHED NAZI OIL OUTPUT

LONDON, June 4 (AP).—The United States strategic air force today issued a glowing report on results of the recent bombing of eight plants which produced about 50 per cent of Germany's synthetic oil, asserting the attacks "seriously curtailed" their output.

The principal attacks occurred May 12, 28 and 29 against refineries at Zeitz, about 20 miles south of Leipzig, the Stettin suburb of Politz, and at Brux, in the Czech Sudetenland.

"The Zeitz factory is believed to be out of commission indefinitely," the report said, "while fires and explosions were so extensive at Politz and Brux that it is problematical how they can get back in production." Other factories hit were at Merseburg; Lutzkendorf, near Leipzig; Magdeburg; Bohlen, near Leipzig; and Ruhland, north of Dresden.

The Nazis lost 150 planes in combats against the American raiders on May 12 and 98 on May 28.

Welcomes Chance to Help Wounded.

Members of the army general hospital unit 12, recruited from Northwestern university and Passavant hospital, are "working in 25 or 30 different areas at as many different jobs" in occupied Italy, a nurse with the unit said in letters received here yesterday.

The unit's hospital facilities have improved since it left Africa, the nurse said. There discarded tin cans, tea and cigaret boxes, peanut butter jars, and cigar boxes were used to hold hospital equipment.

Impressed by Poverty.

Members of the hospital unit are in contact with the Italian civilian population and have been impressed by extreme poverty, gratitude for gifts of food and poor sanitation facilities, the nurse said, adding she could understand why so many Italians wanted to emigrate to America.

However, she said she could not understand how the Italians got all their merchandise. "All shops seem overstocked," she said. "Their offerings are most attractive. Well-to-do people among the natives seem to be extremely reluctant to help their less fortunate citizens."

Tells Reactions of Wounded.

"It makes my blood boil," she wrote, "to see our youth sacrificed in an effort to settle 'old world' grievances. We must not overlook the basic fact that, except for what we can give, we are not wanted. I cannot say that I am enjoying my experience except that I am able to do something now and then to preserve the life of an American doughboy. . . .

"How our hearts do go out to these wounded and sick soldiers," the nurse continued. "When they reach us they are miserably dirty and in collapse from fatigue. A bath and a shave is the first procedure after the wound has received emergency treatment. They won't talk at first. They just lie quietly, looking. They scarcely mumble an answer to questions. After 48 hours or so strength begins to return and the one query is, 'Will I recover and will I ever get back home?'"

They'll Save Gas

Mounted on bicycles, 50 volunteer workers of Glencoe's fifth war loan campaign yesterday afternoon rode up to the doorway of the home of Mrs. Abel Davis, 600 Sheridan rd., to participate in an organization meeting which drew an attendance of 150 volunteer war bond salesmen, all residents of the north shore suburb. The bikes will be used for calls on Glencoeites as the bond drive gains headway.

Raymond F. Smith, drive chairman, announced a quota of $1,200,000, and told the group that the bond drive, which begins next Monday, would be confined entirely to the solicitation of Glencoe householders. No corporation war bond purchasers would be sought, he said.

William S. Preston is assisting Smith. Mrs. Davis, who is the war finance chairman, has Mrs. Walter J. Preston as vice chairman of her group.

Of the volunteers of 211 workers, 175 are men. But the entire slate of zone captains is made up of women workers, as follows: Mrs. L. Duncan Lloyd, Mrs. Robert Mason, Mrs. Edward H. McDermott, Mrs. Volney Parker, Mrs. Arthur Shiverick, Mrs. Stanley Wessel, Mrs. Robert F. White, and Mrs. Ores E. Zehr.

Women bicycle riders included Mrs. Henry H. Brigham Jr., Mrs. Stanley Wessel, Mrs. Frederick L. Seaberg, a member of the publicity committee, and Mrs. A. J. Freiler. John C. Harkness and Edward N. Meyers rode a tandem. Ronslow Sherer, Illinois war finance committee chairman, displayed a two-wheeled vehicle, as did Sam Hypes, president of Wieboldt's department stores, Frank Coffin, and Kenneth E. Olsen.

Allies Shoot Down 439 German Planes in Week

LONDON, June 4 (AP).—Allied airmen shot down at least 439 German aircraft in three theaters of war last week, against an allied loss of 280. The Nazis lost 280 over Europe, of which 264 were claimed by American airmen, and the remaining 16 by the R. A. F. The Americans lost 138 aircraft and the R. A. F. 47. In the Mediterranean theater, 157 German planes were downed and the allied loss was 85. In the middle east, the R. A. F. got two and lost 10.

RAF Middle East Planes Sink 17 Ships in Month

CAIRO, June 4 (AP).—R. A. F. planes based in the middle east destroyed 17 enemy supply vessels and damaged 25 in day and night attacks last month ranging from the coasts of Greece to the eastern waters of the Aegean, it was announced officially today.

Bomber Crash in West Kills Entire Crew of 8

March Field, Cal., June 4 (AP).—A B-24 bomber crashed last night while returning from a training flight, killing all eight army flyers aboard. None of the identified dead was from the Chicago area.

RIDGES CLEARED, YANKS RESUME BIAK ADVANCE

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, June 5 [Monday]—(AP).—American troops are advancing in two columns slowly toward Mokmer airdrome, on Biak Island, in the face of intense Japanese mortar, machine gun and rifle fire, headquarters reported today.

The position of the forward American columns was indefinite but the latest available reports placed them within two and a half miles of Mokmer, first of three airdromes on this main isle in the Schoutens off north Dutch New Guinea.

[This report gave evidence that the American withdrawal was deeper than official reports indicated after the first thrust was repelled by the Japanese. The Americans were within 1,000 yards of Mokmer when a series of Japanese counter-attacks began.]

The new advance by the Yanks, who received reënforcements, began Friday morning after isolated pockets of Japanese were cleared from ridges along the main columns' flanks. Progress had been halted while infantrymen mopped up sharpshooters and mortar squards who dominated a coastal road from positions on the ridges.

More Japanese Slain.

Patrol clashes in the Mafin bay and Hollandia areas on Dutch New Guinea resulted in 341 more Japanese killed. More than 4,000 Japanese dead in these regions had already been announced.

On Bougainville Island, in the northern Solomons, American forces occupied the mouth of the Jaba river without opposition on Friday. This point is 12 miles southeast of Torokina, where the original beachhead was made last November, and approximately five miles south of the Tekessi river mouth, occupied by an American landing force on May 27.

Both of these operations were encircling movements to isolate further some of the thousands of Japanese still resisting on Bougainville.

Enemy Loses 30 Planes.

Thirty Japanese planes were destroyed in farflung air battles over Biak, Babo on Dutch New Guinea and Truk atoll in the Carolines. American raiders dropped 30 tons of bombs Friday on Dublon Island, one of the main fortified points in the Truk group.

The Japanese sent up more fighter opposition than usual. Thirty planes failed to break an American bomber formation over Truk, losing a third of their force. All American planes returned safely.

On Biak, 20 Japanese fighters attempted to divebomb the American beachhead at Bosnek and nearby shipping. Airmen downed eight and ground gunned another.

American fighters tackled 20 enemy planes over Babo, and downed 11 while losing one.

JEWISH ISSUE BREWS CRISIS IN POLISH CABINET

War Minister's Ouster Awaits Decision.

LONDON, June 4 (AP).—Public allegations of Jew-baiting in the Polish forces here have failed to produce large transfers of Polish Jews to the British military, but have left an unsolved Polish cabinet crisis on the eve of western front operations.

Lt. Gen. Marjan Kukiel, war minister, awaits the decision of the national council, Poland's "parliament in exile," on the Polish Socialist party's demand for his resignation. The Socialists declare he has failed to wipe out anti-Semitism in the Polish army.

Further evidence of internal Polish dissension was the council's unanimous vote asking the removal of Gen. Kasimierz Sosnkowski as president-designate, a ranking that automatically would mean his succession to the presidency if President Waladyslaw Raczkiewicz died. Sosnkowski also is commander in chief of the Polish army.

Polish Stand Satisfies Britain.

The apparently final position of the British government is that Polish authorities are doing their best to stamp out any anti-Semitism in the Polish forces. Two hundred Polish Jewish soldiers were transferred to the British army several months ago, but the government has refused to take that as a precedent in the suggested transfer of the 600 still serving under the Polish flag.

Additional transfers would weaken specially trained Polish units, lower discipline, and lay a basis for desertion by any soldier with a grievance, the foreign office contends.

The British officially felt they had gone as far as they cared to go when Polish amnesty recently was obtained for 24 Polish Jews who had been sentenced by Polish court martial to varying terms of imprisonment on charges of desertion. The Jews had quit their units and come to London to try to join British forces.

Eden Report to Commons.

Foreign Secretary Eden, in welcoming the amnesty, told the house of commons on May 17 that he was satisfied that the Polish authorities were doing all in their power to stamp out racial or religious discrimination in the Polish forces.

A committee of the Polish national council, including two Jews, is examining the question of minorities in the Polish army, especially the reasons prompting Jewish troops to seek transfers.

Tom Driberg, a member of the British parliament who says he is not Jewish, has been leading the fight in behalf of any of the Jewish troops who wish to join the British. Driberg calls himself "completely independent, moderately of the left." For 15 years he was on the editorial staff of Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express and for 10 years wrote a column under the name of "William Hickey."

Red Supports Driberg.

William Gallacher, only communist in the British house of commons, and some members of other parties, including the Conservative, have sided with Driberg. The national council for civil liberties, a private organization interested in anti-Fascist and liberal causes, also is behind the transfer move.

The civil liberties group has collected dozens of sworn statements quoting Jewish troops as saying that they were often insulted by non-Jewish Polish troops and that their lives were threatened.

Several Polish-Jewish soldiers brought to London by Polish authorities on May 12, however, said they did not suffer serious discrimination from their comrades.

GIFT PLANE SINKS 6 SHIPS.

LONDON, June 4 [AP].—A plane named "We Will Do," given to the Red army by Red Skelton, American movie and radio comedian, has sunk six Nazi vessels totaling 26,500 tons during the last year in the Gulfs of Finland and Riga and in the Baltic sea, the Moscow radio said today.

The Neighbors

By George Clark

"Oh, I think it's very becoming, Freddie!—You ARE Freddie, aren't you?"

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with queries.]

M. C. asks: "What is the difference between P. O. R. and P. O. E.? My husband was home on a furlough and had P. O. R. on his papers while another soldier friend of his had P. O. E. on his papers."

ANSWER: There is not much difference between the abbreviations. P. O. R. is [P]reparation [O]verseas [R]eplacement; P. O. E. is [P]ort of [E]mbarkation.

D. S. S. asks: "Is there anything in military law restricting a service man in the amount of income he may have in addition to his military pay? At the time I was inducted my income as vice president and treasurer of a Chicago lumber company was $12,000 per year. The board of directors agreed to pay me this salary while I was in service as long as the finances of the company could enable them to do so. After a while this salary was cut in half, then later to $250 per month and finally I received word the auditors had said the company would have to discontinue it altogether because of my being in service. I know the company is able to pay half-scale at least and I would like your idea of the matter."

ANSWER: There is nothing in military or naval law to prevent your firm from paying you 100 per cent salary unless you happen to be an officer and the firm is doing business with the government—otherwise, the sky is the limit. See your lawyer about getting the money owing you or talk with your legal assistance officer.

N. R. S. asks: "Can you tell me the age and experience required for ship repair unit ratings from third class petty officer up?"

ANSWER: Chief petty officer requires 15-20 years of experience with approximately one-half of that time serving in a supervisory capacity. For appointment as first class petty officer, a minimum of 10 years' experience in the candidate's specialization is required; second class petty officer has a requirement of at least five years, and a third class petty officer must have had at least three years' experience.

M. S. B. writes: "I was just recently discharged from the army after 22 months' service, six months of which were overseas. My discharge is an 'honorable one and reads "C. D. D., 2d Ind., etc." Just what does Sect. II. mean? Am I liable to be called back into service? I am receiving some compensation from the veterans' administration for service connected disability. Would this compensation be taken from me if I got a job?"

ANSWER: A Sect. II. discharge is for physical disability and before being returned for service, your disability would have to come within the physical standards current at the time. Your service connected compensation is recognition of this disability and will not be terminated because of employment.

BATTLE NEAR IASI RAGES ON, SAYS MOSCOW

LONDON, June 5 [Monday]—(AP).—The Russians announced early today that more than 1,100 Germans were killed and 30 enemy tanks knocked out yesterday north of Iasi in Romania where the Germans have been attacking for a week without making any appreciable headway.

The midnight Russian bulletin, broadcast from Moscow and recorded here by the soviet monitor indicated no slackening of the fighting. The Germans continued to throw in large forces of tanks and infantry despite heavy losses.

Berlin news reports said the soviets' counter-blows had strong air support, but made no headway, while a DNB commentator declared German-Romanian troops had "extended their successes" of Saturday.

PLANES COVER NAZIS' DRIVE AGAINST TITO IN WESTERN BOSNIA

LONDON, June 4 (AP).—Marshal Tito reported today that the Germans, using strong motorized troops operating under an air cover, were continuing their offensive against the Yugoslav Partisans in western Bosnia.

His broadcast war report said the Germans were suffering "appreciable losses" in fierce fighting. The bulletin added that Partisan units on other fronts "are attacking enemy garrisons, columns, and lines of communication."

Do You Know How LITTLE a Personal Loan Need Cost?

For a 12 mo. $100 LOAN — At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $20.84; At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 8.00; YOU SAVE $12.84

For a 12 mo. $200 LOAN — At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $39.52; At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 16.00; YOU SAVE $23.52

Why Pay More THAN THIS LOW COST?

*Savings shown apply to "signature only" loans repaid in 12 monthly instalments, cost to be deducted in advance. You can save even more if you borrow with one co-maker. In either case, you save at least half of usual and lawful Small Loan Charges.

IF—for borrowing $100 you've had to repay 12 payments of $10.07 each—that amounts to $120.84—which is $20.84 more than you borrowed. And $20.84, therefore, is what that loan cost you.

That same amount, $100, at Merchandise Bank would cost you only $8.00—on your signature only. It would cost you only $5.50—with one co-maker. So—here you would save at least $12.84—or as much as $15.34—depending on which plan you borrow.

Money In Your Pocket

What you save, in either case, is money in your pocket. It amounts to nearly as much as two payments on your loan. That's the difference between usual small loan charges and Merchandise Bank's extremely low rates.

If you need a loan, or want to reduce present borrowing costs, get in touch with Merchandise Bank. There's no need to take time off your job. Simply phone Whitehall 4500, or write, and everything can be quickly and confidentially arranged.

RUSSIANS FIND SHUTTLE YANKS 'JUST LIKE US'

BY EDDY GILMORE.

A U. S. AIR BASE SOMEWHERE IN THE SOVIET UNION, June 4 (AP).—Russians gave an open armed welcome to men in the United States 15th air force, the first allied flyers to land in the U. S. S. R. while on actual military operations, when the Yanks set their heavy bombers down at this American air field deep in Russia Friday.

En route to the air base from Italy, the Americans had bombed freight yards and locomotive shops at Debrecen, a communications junction in Romania.

Russian officers and soldiers, who with the Americans at this base helped make this mission possible, rushed forward to greet the flyers as they came in.

"Why, they are just like us," said a Red army sergeant. "Look how they laugh and act."

After reporting to intelligence officers, these men, whose bombs blasted yards where stood more than 900 cars loaded with axis military equipment, marched to living quarters.

A Boy Presents Flowers.

A boy, about 10, walked toward the first group and handed a sergeant a bunch of flowers. "For the American," the youngster said with a grin.

Lt. Col. William Jackson of South Pittsburg, Tenn., in charge of the base hospital, escorted the flyers to a village, where a crowd had gathered. The peasants commented thus:

"Americans? Where did they come from? How like Russians. There is one who looks like my Sasha. Here take this basket, I want you to have it. We will take no money from the Americans."

A Russian addressed the crowd:

"These American boys have landed here after dropping bombs on some of Hitler's trains. They just want to buy a few souvenirs."

An American officer said, "We asked the Russians what targets they wanted us to bomb. They told us and we did it and they liked it."

Midwesterners on Mission.

Among the American flyers were Arthur E. Cox of Springfield and Lt. C. K. Hankousk of Minooka, Ill.; Lt. Warren H. Little, Royal Oak, Mich., on his 46th mission; Lt. Robert J. Schliesman, Racine, Wis., hero of 51 missions; Lt. Robert J. Briffin, Valparaiso, Ind., and Lt. Herman F. Christoph, New Hampton, Ia.

The base where I am writing is under command of Lt. Col. Curtis P. Boas, Victoria, Tex., who was high in his praise of his Russian helpers. They have provided even bath tubs.

When Capt. Robert Wiseheart, a surgeon of Lebanon, Ind., was preparing for arrival of the Americans, he came across Red Cross bandages that had been packed by his wife.

Another tireless worker was Capt. Robert Newell, Oak Park, Ill., surgeon.

Capt. Burton L. Furst, Walkerton, Ind., heads the dental staff. He was prepared when this correspondent, smack in the middle of the landing, lost a tooth.

The hospital staff was pleasantly disappointed with just one case: a lieutenant's appendix was removed.

Report Bulgaria Recalls Staff; to Break with Reds

New York, June 4 (AP).—The Stockholm newspaper, Aftonbladet, in an article reported today by the office of war information, said that the staff of the Bulgarian legation in Moscow had been recalled and that "the new Bulgarian government is taking the initiative in severing relations with the soviets."

NEW BRITISH QUADS 'VERY BONNY,' SAYS THEIR R. A. F. FATHER

LONDON, June 4 (AP).—Britain's fifth set of quadruplets within a year—Linda, David, Carol, and Pauline Robinson—all were reported doing well today. The children were born last night in a London hospital to Mrs. Edith Robinson, wife of an R. A. F. aircraftman. The father saw the infants for the first time today. The hospital reported that the mother spent a restful night.

The hospital gave the weights of the Robinson quadruplets as: Linda, 3 pounds 9 ounces; David, 3 pounds 13 ounces; Carol, 3 pounds 10 ounces; Pauline, 3 pounds 2 ounces. The father described them as "very bonny," and said each has a "quiff of fair hair."

The children were the second set of quadruplets born in England in the last two weeks. On May 22 Mrs. Daisy Moxham, wife of an R. A. F. flying officer, became the mother of three boys and a girl. One of the boys died.

Pravda Attacks Buffalo Polish-American Parley

MOSCOW, June 4 (AP). — The recent Polish-American congress at Buffalo, N. Y., was denounced today by Pravda [Communist party organ] as "a comedy of Polish fascists." The article said the congress had urged President Roosevelt to support the claims of the Polish government in London, but "screams of a buffoon congress cannot halt the Polish people in their desire for active military leadership. It is hopeless to expect Hitler's Polish agency to correct itself."

Bulgarian Minister Killed in Air Raid, Vichy Reports

LONDON, June 4 (AP).—The Vichy radio today said Alexander Stanischev, Bulgarian minister of interior, had been killed during an air raid.

SGT. YORK HILLS GIVE ANOTHER HERO TO NATION

Corporal Outfights Nazis Against Big Odds.

Washington, D. C., June 4 (AP).—Corp. Paul B. Huff, whose home is the Tennessee hill country that sent Sgt. Alvin York to fame in World War I., is the nation's newest congressional medal of honor man.

Paul B. Huff.

The war department announced today that the 25 year old ex-railroader from Cleveland, Tenn., would receive the medal at a ceremony overseas.

Huff, a parachute infantryman, won the award in action near Carano, Italy, last February 8, when he volunteered to lead a six man patrol into enemy territory to determine the strength of a German unit.

Odds Against Americans.

Conditions were against the patrol—the weather was clear, there was almost no cover and the enemy had good observation positions.

Huff and his men chose a shallow draw as the only feasible route of approach, but the draw was mined and covered by three machine guns and a 20 mm. cannon. When the patrol was 350 yards distant, the guns opened fire and mortar shells were hurled. Huff ordered his men to take advantage of any cover and went forward alone.

He crawled 75 yards under direct fire to a point behind the first German gun. There he opened fire with his submachine gun, killing the crew and putting the gun out of action. Huff fired from a kneeling position in a deliberate attempt to cause the Germans to fire on him and expose their positions.

Score 48 to 3.

Four hours after the patrol set out it returned without a casualty. The information Huff brought back resulted in the capture of 21 prisoners, the killing of 27 others and the routing of the entire enemy unit of 125 at a cost of two American dead and one wounded.

Huff's father, Isham Huff, is a veteran employe in the Southern railroad yards.

HUNT FOR LINK IN ABBATTE CASE TO START TODAY

Lt. Thomas J. Kelley of the state's attorney's office said yesterday he would start an investigation today into the disappearance of Matt Manzo, Calumet City night club owner, who has been missing since last February. Manzo's disappearance may be linked, Illinois and Arkansas authorities indicated, with the murder in Hot Springs, Ark., of Frank Abbatte, Chicago racehorse owner and gambler.

Meanwhile Vito Impastato, 39, alleged member of an East St. Louis gang, and Mrs. Catherine Abbatte, 29, widow of Abbatte, were released yesterday by Springfield police, who had questioned them about both cases.

The automobile driven by the pair at the time they were picked up, said to be the property of Manzo, was held at Springfield.

Impastato, owner of the Club Rio on the outskirts of Springfield, had been sought since his appearance in Hot Springs with Mrs. Abbatte several days before Abbatte's body was found April 22.

FRAUD CONVICTIONS RISE 306%.

Washington, D. C., June 4 [AP].—A 306 per cent increase in convictions for fraud against the government in the first 10 months of the present fiscal year, in comparison to a year ago, was reported today by the federal bureau of investigation.

BEG YOUR PARDON

The commencement exercises for graduates of St. Rita's Parochial High school will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Colony theater, 59th st. and Kedzie av., and not at 8 p. m., as stated in yesterday's southwest Metropolitan section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

TWO YEARS, 52 MISSIONS; RAY EARNS SENDOFF

Raymond Skulina, 2532 S. Avers av., returned home yesterday for a 30 day furlough, his first since he was feted in March, 1942, as the 10,000th recruit enlisted in the navy from Chicago. Skulina, who is 20, justified the faith Chicago had when Mayor Kelly and other officials honored him then. In his two years away from home, one of them overseas, he has been on 52 missions over enemy territory, nine of which involved engaging the enemy. He is an aviation ordnance man, 1st class. After the furlough he will be assigned to a new unit for further duty.

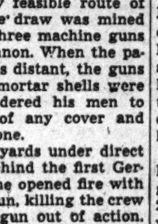
SOLDIER, HOME, SAYS HE'LL BE 'BUSY SHOPPER'

Pvt. Carl Albert, 23, air forces ground crew engineer home on furlough, expected to be one of the loop's busiest shoppers today. He is replenishing a wardrobe lost several times as his unit moved around North Africa, Italy, and England.



Pvt. Carl Albert.

"Welcome Home" signs are painted on the street before his home, 2130 W. Summerdale av., banners float from wires strung between trees, and flags stand along the walk up to the house. Neighbors waited for hours, until 11 p. m. Saturday, to welcome Albert after an absence of two years.

Albert frequently refers to a little notebook in which he listed all the things he promised himself he'd do when he got home. Heading the list are apple pie a la mode, steak, plenty of potatoes [non dehydrated], greens, and rye bread and milk, neither of which he has tasted fresh for "a long time—too long."

He is the son of Mrs. Julia Albert, a board of education clerk, and has two brothers, Thomas and Jack, both air force pilots in this country.

3 Drown When Launch Capsizes in Lake Erie

PORT STANLEY, Ont., June 4 (AP).—Three persons were known dead, twelve were listed as missing, and 13 were rescued in Lake Erie today after a 33 foot cabin cruiser capsized and partially submerged about 500 feet from the pier. According to the stories of survivors, the engine stopped when the boat was about 500 feet from the pier. A large wave struck the side of the craft and it partially capsized when the passengers rushed to one side of the boat.

TOOLS WORTH $10 STOLEN.

Tools worth $10 were stolen out of his automobile yesterday. Edward Mason, 151 S. Whipple st., complained to police.

STATE TO TRAIN MEN IN HANDLING AID TO VETERANS

Service Officers' School Set for June 11-16.

Gov. Green will meet today in Chicago with Leonard W. Esper, state commander of the American Legion, James P. Ringley, vice chairman of the governors' committee on veterans' rehabilitation and employment, and coöperating organizations to complete plans for the Illinois Service Officers' school to be held in Jacksonville June 11 to 16.

L. W. Esper.

The school, first of its kind in the country, will train men and women in handling problems of returned service men and women and helping to reëstablish them in civil life.

Expect 600 to Attend.

Enrollment in the six day course is expected to exceed 600 persons, and early registrants, state officials said, include lawyers, ministers, newspaper public service heads, personnel managers, school teachers, service officers for veterans organizations and state agencies.

Instructors for the school, announced yesterday, are:

Jay Brown, field secretary, American Legion; Lester R. Benston, department service officer, American Legion; J. C. Bickel, assistant service officer, American Legion; James P. Ringley, Commonwealth Edison Co.; Richard E. Hayes, Sr., contact officer, Veterans' administration; A. B. Chadwick, adjudication officer, Veterans' administration; C. E. Hostetler, vocational training secretary, Veterans' administration; H. R. Pool, chief attorney, Veterans' administration; Dr. W. E. Kendall, manager, Veterans administration, Hines hospital; John W. Nelson, service officer, state division of Veterans' service; Guy E. Bonney, superintendent state division of Veterans' service.

Capt. H. H. Weimer, veterans' representative, U. S. Employment Service; Alice E. Kennedy, chief examiner, state civil service commission; Edwin Koch, supervisor, state division of rehabilitation; Graham Perry, assistant attorney general; Samuel E. Bernstein, state commissioner of unemployment compensation; Dr. H. A. Vonachen, medical director, Caterpillar Tractor Co.; C. L. Schwyart, director of training, Caterpillar Tractor Co.; C. C. Byerly, first assistant superintendent of public instruction; Joseph A. Connor, regional director, federal civil service; Albert Evans, assistant to manager, American Red Cross, St. Louis; and Homer G. Bradney, administrator, Governor's Committee on Veterans' Rehabilitation and Employment.

To Train Key Men.

In commenting on the service school, Gov. Green said:

"Thru this intensive and comprehensive course we will prepare key men and women in every county of the state to go back to their communities and be of real service to veterans, not only those who will come back after peace, but those who already have returned. One of the chief problems facing the disabled veteran is what steps to take to obtain the aid and assistance that is rightfully his, both from his state and the federal government."

HAUPT DEFENSE STARTS TODAY; 6 WILL TESTIFY

Defense testimony in the trial of Hans Max Haupt, charged with treasonably harboring and aiding his son, Herbert, executed Nazi saboteur, will get under way today in the federal court of Judge John P. Barnes.

Paul A. F. Warnholtz, chief defense counsel, said half a dozen witnesses will be summoned in an effort to show that the elder Haupt went about his every day duties at the time in late June, 1942, when he is alleged to have aided his son in his mission to the United States to sabotage war plants.

Among the witnesses will be the defendant's wife, Erna Haupt, who is in the county jail awaiting trial on a similar charge of treason; Mrs. Gerda Melind Saure, 1631 Chase av., former sweetheart of Herbert and a government witness, and Hugo Troesken, a companion of young Haupt and Wolfgang Wergin on their trip to Mexico in 1941.

TAVERN LOSS SET AT $528.

Police were notified yesterday that burglars broke into Truckman's tavern, 936 W. Madison st., and stole $77 cash and $451 worth of whisky.

DAY by DAY on the FARM.

The FARM by Ben Markland

June 4, 1944.

THE subject of lawn care is receiving increased attention in proportion to the new interest in gardening. Methods of maintaining a healthy turf, varieties of lawn seed, and methods of cutting and watering are common subjects in city and suburban neighborhoods.

Blue grass lawns are by far the most common in this area, altho many homeowners are turning to Astoria bent and fescue grasses because of their greater resistance to weed infestation. The lawns on the Wheaton farm are blue grass, but in the last two years the gardener has switched to Astoria bent for new seedings and for thickening the stands of established blue grass. Astoria bent seeded into blue grass eventually will crowd out the blue variety.

This Bent Sown from Seed.

Astoria bent, unlike creeping bent, usually is sown from seed rather than from established tufts. The root stocks spread underground, sending up new shoots and thus creating a thick turf. When well established, Astoria bent lawns are so thick that they repel dandelions and crab grass. This type of grass is cut like blue grass, and does not require a special bent mower.

Astoria bent thrives in full sunlight, and a substitute for shaded areas is Chewing's fescue seed, which also spreads by underground roots and creates a thick, matted turf. Most of the packaged seeds sold for shady areas contain 20 to 35 per cent fescue. This same variety also thrives in light, sandy soils.

The proper cutting of a lawn is one of the most important features of turf care. Blue grass, fescue, or Astoria bent lawns can be cut short [about one inch] in the early spring and in fall.

Summer Tip on Mowing.

At this time of the year, it is advisable to adjust the roller to raise the blades to 1¾ to two inches. Cutting the grass comparatively high in the warm months provides better nourishment for the roots and the resultant shade from the tall grass decreases the germination of crab grass. This grass weed cannot germinate in shade.

The practice of sowing white clover seed in blue grass lawns is discouraged by most lawn authorities. This practice thickens the turf and thus helps to repel dandelions and crab grass, but it also weakens the stand of blue grass. Since white clover dies during severe winters, it is only a temporary turf builder.

★ The GARDEN ★

IT IS not too late to plant a garden. The numerous spring rains have kept some plots so wet that it has been impossible to complete plowing or spading, with the result that some prospective gardeners have decided to abandon their plots for this season.

It is too late for certain vegetables—mainly peas, true spinach, and leaf lettuce, but all other common vegetables can safely be planted now. Such vegetables as tomatoes, beets, carrots, snap beans, lima beans, sweet corn, and onions will mature long before frost time if planted this month, altho all should be put in the ground as soon as possible. Likewise, gardeners who planted early and now are harvesting early vegetables can replant their rows to these and other vegetables.

Gardeners who want leaf greens for late summer harvest can depend upon beet tops, Swiss chard, and New Zealand spinach, which can be planted now in place of true spinach. New Zealand spinach seeds should be soaked in warm water for 24 hours before planting.

2 ILLINOIS CIVIL WAR VETERANS ARE DEAD AT 99

Two of the few remaining Illinois veterans of the Civil war died yesterday. They were Francis W. Waterman of Rockford and Frank Hocking Sr. of Fairfield, each of whom was 99 years old.

Waterman died in Holy Cross hospital in Chicago. He enlisted at 17, was captured at Antietam, and was imprisoned at Andersonville.

Hocking was in the army of Gen. Sherman in the march thru Georgia. He died at Fairfield.

U. OF I. SPEAKER URGES 3 NEW 'R'S' FOR EDUCATION

Urbana, Ill., June 4 [Special].—Three new "R's"—reason, resourcefulness, and responsibility—were proposed today for higher education after the war by Dr. Carter Davidson, president of Knox college, in a combined commencement and baccalaureate address at the 73d commencement exercises at the University of Illinois.

Dr. Davidson.

Dr. Davidson asserted education has been accused of lagging behind society's needs.

"If this has been true in the past," he said, "it certainly must not be true in the future. When the war is over it is going to be the great task of education, government, religion, and all the other institutions of civilization to work for the restoration of the dignity of the individual man."

Approximately 550 degrees were conferred by Dr. Arthur Cutts Willard, president of the university. This was the smallest group of June graduates since 1903. Of those receiving degrees, approximately 200 were from Chicago and Cook county.

U. S. AID TO PERU CALLED STUDY IN CONTRADICTIONS

We Lend to a Borrower Already in Default.

[This is the 16th article in a series by a Tribune reporter who has returned from a tour of Latin America.]

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON.

Once famed Peru may never know again the fabulous wealth of its ancient Inca dynasty but it is enjoying more easily acquired riches from the incredible golden stream being poured into Latin-America by the New Deal.

This largess to a country currently noted mostly for archeological ruins must appear the more miraculous to its comparatively few inhabitants because the funds are financing local benefits they are well able to give themselves. At the same time, they have declined to return other moneys previously lent them by their lavish northern neighbor who carries their favor with taxpayers' dollars.

Peru is not lacking in either actual or potential resources. It has valuable mineral, oil, forest and agricultural products sufficient for its own needs and to export. For many years Peru has had a favorable balance in world trade.

Despite such productiveness, the United States has made large gifts and loans to Peru to finance development of agriculture. The basis for these expenditures is the fact that insufficient food is now grown in the country to feed the 7,000,000 inhabitants altho the Incas fed more than twice that number some 400 years ago by tilling the same land.

Sen. Hugh Butler of Nebraska, in a recent report to congress after a Latin-American tour, expressed doubt that the problems of those countries are best solved by the United States spending large sums for miscellaneous activities. He asserted that Peru, especially, "could undertake proper agricultural development to better advantage herself."

$1 Millions in Default.

Sen. Butler noted that Peru is in default of $81,600,000 on bonds financed by private loans from United States citizens but that our Export-Import bank nevertheless had extended credits of $30,000,000.

"That Peru does not intend to repay these loans," Butler said, "is indicated by the refusal of the president of Peru four months ago to make a 3 per cent token payment on past due interest. The only conclusion possible is that Peru doesn't intend to pay this money back. Illustrative of this attitude is the attempted bargain which the president of Peru tried to drive with the United States by offering a 2 per cent token payment if the United States would guarantee to continue lend-lease aid in undiminished volume."

The $30,000,000 credit extended to Peru is intended to finance agricultural and industrial projects. In addition there were gifts to Peru of $1,365,000 for health and sanitation projects and $500,000 for an agricultural crop diversification program. Other United States millions have been spent on rubber development.

In 1940 our Export-Import bank approved a credit of $10,000,000 to Peru to cover purchases from us. In 1942 we granted a $25,000,000 loan to construct a steel mill and an irrigation project.

Build Up Competitor.

Thus, at the same time we are providing Peru with the money to buy our exports, we are financing a mill that will produce enough steel to enable Peru to export to other South American countries in competition with us.

A similar contradiction appears in the agricultural situation. Peruvians import part of their food. Their production shortage results from lack of irrigation and because so much arable land is taken over for export crops—mostly cotton and sugar, of which there is ever an abundance.

Then along comes New Deal spending to remedy the matter. Altho the United States is hard pressed in normal times to find uses for its own cotton, and must plow it under and subsidize farmers not to grow it, the United States Credit corporation early in 1942 agreed to buy Peru's exportable cotton up to 200,000 five hundred pound bales a year at world prices and to store it in Peru for the duration of the war. At the 1942 price of 17 cents a pound, this approximates $17,000,000 a year for cotton for which we have no use now, and at war's end will be a surplus competing for sale with our own cotton crops.

At the same time, we are financing a 250,000 acre irrigation project calling for an expenditure of $15,000,000 which, when completed, will bring under cultivation sufficient additional land to enable Peruvians to grow much more of their food—and to continue producing their more profitable export crops.

WARN GROWERS OF SHORTAGE IN FRUIT BASKETS

Fresh fruit and vegetable growers in Illinois were reminded yesterday by W. A. Stolte, state supervisor for the war food administration, of the shortage in new wooden containers and the necessity for using converted or substitute containers wherever possible.

"Production of new wooden containers this year is going to fall about 15 to 25 per cent short of growers' demands," Stolte said. The most serious shortage, he said, is in bushel and half bushel baskets. Even used stocks of these sizes are "alarmingly low," he added.

Available containers may be used for produce not ordinarily shipped in them, Stolte suggested.

SEES NEW DEAL LABEL PARTY'S TAG OF DEFEAT

BY THOMAS MORROW.

John U. Barr of New Orleans, national chairman of the Byrd for President campaign, said yesterday that the "day the country at large learns that the Democratic party is no longer the temporary home of commies, and wild-eyed experimenting pinks, millions of independents will flock to our party."

Barr, at the Hotel Sherman for conferences with Illinois Democrats, said politicians are now aware the Democrats can win if they avoid a New Deal or fourth term nominee. He held that his organization has the solution in Sen. Byrd of Virginia.

"Must Abandon Aliens."

"From now to convention time," Barr said, "it will be the job of party politicians to find a way of cutting their ties with the two-bit alien minorities who have up to now been out-shouting the real Democrats."

Barr said he had talked on the present tour with Democratic leaders in Ohio, New York, and New Jersey. He said he was surprised to find the split in party ranks as wide as in the south.

At the same time Dr. Gleason L. Archer, chairman of the American Democratic National committee, anti-fourth term organization, said a pre-convention caucus will be held in the Hamilton hotel June 19. He stressed the fact that his is not a third party movement and added that "the Democratic party must be purged of New Dealers."

Coalition Proposed.

"We are seeking a coalition with the Republican party," Dr. Archer said, "in the present election as a preliminary to putting the historic party back on its feet. At the caucus we will adopt a Democratic platform and nominate Democratic candidates for President and Vice President."

In a previous statement, Dr. Archer had indicated his organization might back Gov. John Bricker of Ohio if he is nominated by the Republicans and his opponent is President Roosevelt. He also said he was disturbed over the agitation of New Deal press and radio commentators for nomination of Gov. Dewey of New York.

NORMAN THOMAS AGAIN IS NAMED BY SOCIALISTS

Reading, Pa., June 4 (AP).—The Socialist party today unanimously selected Norman Thomas, 59, New York lecturer and writer, and Darlington Hoopes, 47, Reading attorney and former state legislator, as its 1944 Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees.

It is Thomas' fifth straight nomination; the first for Hoopes. The latter replaces Maynard C. Krueger, 39, University of Chicago economics teacher, who was Thomas' 1940 running mate but who refused to run this year because he is considering entering the race for congress from the second Illinois district.

G.O.P. IN VIRGINIA ORGANIZES TO BACK BRICKER

Falls Church, Va., June 4 [Special].—Organization of a Bricker for President club to carry on an intensive state-wide campaign in behalf of the Ohio governor was announced here today by A. K. Barta, lawyer and Republican leader.

Barta said organization work has been completed in Fairfax county, where 80 influential Republicans have become members, and that branches have been started in Culpeper and Henrico counties. More than half of Virginia's unpledged delegation of 16 members are already favorably inclined toward the Bricker candidacy, Barta said, and the club will concentrate its activities between now and the convention in attempting to impress the delegates with the strength of Bricker sentiment in the state.

Barta has been active in national affairs of the Republican party for the past eight years. In 1938 he was a director of the national Republican speakers' bureau.

Three German Prisoners Escape Camp in Michigan

The federal bureau of investigation said yesterday that three German prisoners of war had escaped over the week-end from Camp Au Train, near Marquette, Mich. They were identified as Karl Theis, 30; Adams Wagner, 25, and Erich Hoessel, 23. Hoessel speaks English; the others do not. The FBI said it was possible that the trio got away in a 1936 black sedan, with wire wheels.

The entire and absolute freedom of the press is essential to the preservation of government on the basis of a free Constitution. —Daniel Webster.

HOW DOES HE GET THAT WAY?

Mr. Roosevelt quietly, if reluctantly, pushed his labor slavery bill into the background when it became apparent that congress had no intention of granting the administration the added power it sought over the lives of citizens. Now his war man power commission has announced a scheme for labor control that is characterized as going farther in some respects than the proposers of the labor draft legislation dared go.

Mr. McNutt, the WMC chairman, is issuing the fiat that after July 1 no employer can hire any male employe except with permission of the federal employment service. The number of employes a concern may keep is to be fixed by the government and workers in areas with excess labor are to be told that they must move and find jobs in areas where there are labor shortages.

The time seems appropriate to ask Mr. McNutt how he gets that way. Under what authority does he presume to issue such regulations? Mr. McNutt will undoubtedly reply that he is acting under the executive orders establishing his agency. Those orders were promulgated by the President.

Mr. Roosevelt was hired by the people of this country to execute their laws, not to make them. His executive orders are valid only insofar as he acts under constitutional and statutory authority. The text of the orders establishing the WMC and extending its powers nowhere cite any statutory authority for the steps Mr. McNutt is undertaking.

The WMC was established by executive order 9139, issued April 18, 1942. In that order the President presumed to act "by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and the statutes, including the first war powers act of 1941, as President of the United States and commander in chief of the army and navy." The only part of the first war powers act that might be remotely related to the establishment of the WMC was that which gave the President power to redistribute the functions of existing government agencies to further the prosecution of the war. It did not give him any authority to establish any new functions.

A second executive order, No. 9279, on Dec. 5, 1942, placed the administration of selective service under the WMC and authorized it to use all lawful authority necessary to assure that hiring of labor was conducted thru the United States employment service. The only special statute cited as ground for this grant of authority was the selective service act, which has nothing to do with civilian labor except insofar as it provides for draft deferments of essential workers.

Executive order 9328, issued April 8, 1943, froze wages and salaries and presumed to give the WMC power to issue regulations prohibiting employes from transferring from one job to another for a higher rate of pay. The statutory authority cited for this executive order was an amendment to the price control act passed Oct. 2, 1942, which gave the President authority to limit wages, but nowhere granted any authority to prohibit changes of employment.

Thus Mr. McNutt's grandiose scheme of regulation has no solid base of statutory authority, unless one is willing to accept Mr. Biddle's Hitleresque theory that in time of war neither the courts, nor any one else, can question the judgment of the President or the existence of an emergency which he declares to exist. If that theory is accepted, of course, we have no Constitution and no law in America.

Regardless of the legality or constitutionality of Mr. McNutt's order, no showing has been made that any necessity exists for it. Mr. McNutt was alternately blowing hot and cold on the question of a man power shortage six months ago. One day it existed and the next day it didn't. At that time war production was expanding and new war plants were being opened. Today many lines of military production are beginning to be curtailed.

The Brewster airplane plants in the east were shut down because the navy did not need the planes they were making. At those plants there was no question of forcing workers to give up jobs in order to take more essential jobs. They did not have any jobs, and if need for labor existed elsewhere all the WMC had to do was to offer to find the idle workmen employment in other war plants, thru the federal employment system.

Instead, when the workmen staged a sitdown in the idle plants, the administration truckled as usual to the CIO and went scurrying about seeking other war contracts to be given to the Brewster plants. Those plants had a low record of efficiency in the work they were doing. If the man power shortage is so stringent, as Mr. McNutt pretends in justification of his order, why didn't he use the available man power at Brewster?

The purpose of the new employment regulations is not to solve any man power shortage. It is to extend further the power of the administration over every voter, with the probable intention of using that power as a means of intimidation to prevent a free election.

IS CUBA LIBRE?

There is something that does not meet the eye in the presidential election which has just been held in Cuba. The outgoing president, Fulgencio Batista, had been a sergeant in the army when the people of Cuba, after several attempts, succeeded in ridding themselves of the murderous and corrupt Machado government.

Batista bloomed from sergeant to colonel over night and was the real power in the several unstable administrations that followed the overthrow of Machado, before he finally took the presidential office himself. It is to his credit that he was apparently sincere in wanting to improve the economic status of the Cuban people, and that he has been a most loyal ally of the United States, but this does not alter the fact that Batista was an exceedingly hardboiled ruler.

The presidential election was held in constitutional fashion. The constitution prohibited Batista from being a candidate for reelection and he threw his support to Carlos Saladrigas y Zayas. The opposition candidate was Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin. He beat Batista's entry by sweeping majorities in all provinces in the country. Saladrigas, conceding defeat, called on Dr. Grau to congratulate and embrace him. Dr. Grau praised Batista's conduct of the election as fair, honest, and peaceful.

This obviously is at odds with all the traditions of Latin American government. It would be pleasant to think that real republican principles have come into being in Cuba—if they have.

A VOICE FROM INDIANA.

The keynote speech of Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Rensselaer at the Indiana Republican convention was so effective that former Sen. Watson, one of the party's sages, advised the Hoosiers to press it on the national convention as the party platform.

Expounding the Mackinac charter, with its declaration for the preservation of American sovereignty and interests, and its pledge of American coöperation in restoring world order and laying the foundations of permanent peace, Congressman Halleck said:

"The nation will entrust its foreign affairs to a party eager to collaborate, willing to impose its will for peace, but unwilling to purchase peace by making itself the almshouse of the world. That is the Republican party.

"The American people do not want to profit in lands to be conquered; they do not want a profit in spheres of influence, or in peoples to be exploited; they do want and will insist on a profit paid in the coin of lasting peace. They will insist that the things that forced America into this war shall not rise again."

Rep. Halleck has been one of the leading spokesmen of middle western principles on the floor of congress, and one of the most effective. He fits as well as any man can into the category of "isolationists" that the Wall street and Communist internationalists have attempted to convert into a smear term. His words, perfectly consistent with his previous utterances and with the views of the middle west, show how wide the smear artists have come from the mark of truth.

The people of the middle west, like the vast majority of Americans elsewhere thruout the country, are nationalist. Its people want to cooperate for a better world, but as Gov. Bricker reminded the nation the other day in New Jersey, they see clearly that coöperation cannot be onesided. If there is to be coöperation, others must coöperate with us.

WHY NOT A PACIFIC REPUBLIC?

The New Deal post-war planners talk a lot about freedom for oppressed peoples of the world. They talk about carrying the four freedoms to the corners of the earth, but they refuse to be specific about anything except freedom of social uplift as illustrated in Henry Wallace's global milk route theories. When it comes to the hard facts of government and hegemonies, they are strictly status-quo. American marines reconquered Tarawa from the Japanese, but the New Dealers showed no surprise when the British Union Jack was hoisted over the island a few hours later. Britain governed the island before the war. The same thing happened at Hollandia, where the Dutch raised their flag soon after American occupation.

Certainly, the natives of the Southwestern Pacific do not enjoy being squeezed and oppressed by white imperialists much more than they do by Japanese militarists. The prospect of restoration of the Dutch rubber and tin barons and the British and French colonials will not give the Pacific natives much incentive to fight the Japs. Freedom cannot be administered from a veranda any better than it can from the muzzle of a Nipponese machine gun.

Secretary Hull has announced that the United States is a champion of liberty for everybody, and has given a virtual promise that any people who assert their freedom effectively will be recognized. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt approves this doctrine, and the Southwest Pacific would be a fine place to give it a trial.

If the New Dealers are sincere they should announce the formation of a United States of the Western Pacific after the war, composed of the Malay peninsula and the islands of that archipelago. This would put the native populations there definitely on the American side of the war and give them something to fight for.

The Filipinos, who fought much better against the Jap invaders than any of the native or white peoples under Dutch or British rule, naturally would take the lead in any such organization. It would mean the establishment of a republic instead of a group of tyrannies. If the Western Pacific people knew that an American victory meant freedom instead of the brutal treatment they received from the white imperialists and are now receiving from the Japanese, they would struggle to free themselves.

THE NEW REPUBLIC.

Since the old viking blood of Iceland has asserted itself by voting for a republic, which is one way of looking for an argument, let's glance at their ancient lore, which has come down from the Dark Ages in the form of sagas. The history of the settlement of that bleak, romantic island has been recorded more completely than any other migration of more than 1,000 years ago. The tale is told in the "Landnamabok" ["Book of the Taking of the Land"], which preserves the names of over 400 leaders of expeditions and of some 2,500 other pioneers. This record was kept by memory until the 12th century, when it was put into writing.

The land was discovered by a Swedish viking named Gardar Svavarsson, whose ship was driven there by storms. Some years later a Norwegian captain named Naddod came across it again, also by mischance of the weather; and he named it Snowland. Then the viking Floki Vilgerdsson, sailing from Scotland, wintered there, and gave it the name it still bears.

All this happened circa A. D. 850, and in 874 the first Norwegian colonists landed under the leadership of Ingolf Arnarson and Leif Hrodmarsson. Curiously enough, Ingolf found a few Irishmen living on the southeast coast. They were monks, who had sailed there in small boats far less seaworthy than the vikings' galleys. Their voyage was one of the most remarkable feats of early European seamanship.

Furthermore, there is evidence that settlements of Irish monks in Iceland antedated the viking discovery by many years. In A. D. 825 an Irish monk named Dicuil recorded that a number of his brother monastics had spent a summer in Thule, probably Iceland, in 795. These facts give Ireland first claim on Iceland, but the new republicans, who can recite their sagas by the yard, will probably answer that whenever their ancestors caught an Irishman, they turned him into a slave.

The cause of the migration was a New Deal in Norway under the rule of Fair-haired Harold, which irked the individualists. Among them were the sons of Ketil Flatnose, who packed up for Iceland because, as the Laxdalla saga says, "They had heard talk of many good things to be had there, that good lands were to be had there without paying a price for it, that many whales were washed ashore there, and there was a great run of salmon, and the fishing was good at all seasons."

MINOR MIRACLE.

I saw a ruby-throated humming bird
Poised over blossoms pink beside my door,
Its wings vibrating with small thundrous roar,
So fast I saw them not, but only heard.
One bloom and then another, then a third
Received the tiny beak still seeking more
Of sweetness from the never ending store,
As by those wings the air was faintly stirred.
This lovely and so nearly perfect thing
Deserves more than a nature-lover's nod
As on its inconceivably swift wing
It hangs suspended there 'tween sky and sod;
Its breathless beauty knows no need to sing—
This precious minor miracle of God.

Casual.

Dickens as a Sports Writer.

Our mutual friend, Charles Dickens, was a newspaper reporter before he found a profession by which he could make a living and, upon my umpteenth reading of "Pickwick," I am convinced he could have held his own in the Wrigley field and Comiskey park press boxes. The following remarks on the Dingley Dell-All-Muggleton cricket match could apply equally well to the Cubs vs. the Phillies:

"Several players were stationed to 'look out' in different parts of the field and each fixed himself in the proper attitude by placing one hand on each knee, and stooping, very much as if he were 'making a back' for some beginner at leapfrog. All the regular players do this sort of thing—indeed it's generally supposed that it is quite impossible to look out properly in any other position."

Then, as to the fans:

"While at every bad attempt at a catch he [Jingle, the typical know-it-all] launched his personal displeasure at the head of the devoted individual in such denunciations as 'Now, butterfingers,' 'muff,' 'humbug,' and so forth."

Apparently there is nothing new under the bleacher sun. Pat Patten.

REFORMED CHARACTER.

When I was youthful and a fool
(Yeah, I said "was," don't ridicule),
I tossed away my hard-earned dough
On long-shots to win, place, or show;
I'd draw to fill an inside straight,
And give odds when my point was eight.
But now that I am old and broke,
A wiser man am I (don't joke);
And from roulette to twenty-six
All games of chance with me are nix.

What's that? You'll bet that I can't quit?
I'll take that bet—yeah, all of it!

Goose Island's Irish Cousins.

The Irish background of the nickname, Kilgubbin, attached to Goose Island and adjacent areas of Chicago, may be explained thus:

Kilgobban is the name of a district and parish in County Kerry, Ireland; and also is the name of a house in County Wexford, a castle in County Cork, a castle in Dublin, a parish in Dublin, and a house in Limerick. [In Wexford the spelling is Kilgibbon.]

In the days of the Gael, Kilgobban on the Bay of Tralee was the home of the O'Foleys, O'Falveys, O'Kennedys, O'Quills, O'Mullanes, and O'Carrolls. Across Dingle bay and within view stand the McGillicuddy Reeks, the highest mountain on the three islands. Hugh O'Neill.

INFLAMMATION ALONG THE DIGESTIVE TRACT.

HELP is needed whenever the forces of natural resistance are likely to lose the battle with disease. Thus we hail the advent of the sulfa drugs and all other substances which will make it impossible for vicious organisms to destroy health.

Recognition of the power of the sulfonamides was due largely to Gerhard Domagk, who learned of a dye which had been prepared in the Vienna Institute of Technology as long ago as 1908. He used it to save the life of his daughter, a victim of blood poisoning. Thereafter, he insisted that he had identified a valuable remedy against infections. Later trials proved his contention.

Today we have a galaxy of similar products of varying degrees of potency. We will probably continue to manufacture additional compounds until, finally, a half dozen or so will be selected as the most useful.

It is really rather difficult to understand how an intestinal antiseptic can be effective and, at the same time, fail to harm the body. Most chemicals are broken up within the digestive tract and hence their power is dissipated. Nevertheless, considerable assistance has been rendered by the sulfa derivatives in combating infections of the liver, the bile ducts, and ulcerations within the large and small bowel. Certain forms of dysentery, caused by special types of bacteria, have been found to surrender readily to their influence.

The job of the physician has now become one of choosing the modification which is the most valuable. This calls for even more accurate diagnoses than ever before. Furthermore, the doctor must know how to employ the drug in sufficient quantities to bring about the desired effect.

One of our stubborn maladies is inflammation within the small intestine. Our chief concern lies in the fact that this ailment, when neglected, may become chronic. It usually attacks that section of the alimentary tract which joins the ascending structure—the first portion of the large bowel, which lies along the right side of the abdomen.

The patient complains of fatigue, loss of weight, and intermittent diarrhea. Cramps may be severe at intervals. The discharges may change abruptly, becoming firm and dry—only to resume a watery character. More often than not, if untreated, poor nutrition and anemia will ensue. Appetite will be lost and obstruction may be observed occasionally. Now and then one of these sufferers will run a temperature. This is due to absorption from the ulcerated area. The degree of fever will be in direct proportion to the extent of the lesions.

Fortunately, the sulfonamides have been of great help, particularly the one known as "sulfasuxidine." Because this chemical is absorbed slowly, as much as 100 to 150 grains may be administered daily. The usual plan is to start with a small dose and increase the amount as tolerance is exhibited. The diet may be generous but the patient must not include fibrous edibles.

We may well pay attention to peculiar bowel habits, especially those that come on in later years. When reported to the family physician promptly, correction is a simple matter as a rule. In other words, should periods of constipation alternate with diarrhea, and such bouts present themselves frequently, investigation is in order.

UNITS OF HEAT.

W. D. writes: What is a calorie? How is it measured?

REPLY.

In figuring diets, the large calorie is used. It is the amount of heat required to raise a thousand grams of water one degree centigrade [for example, from 15 to 16 degrees C.].

BLOOD ELEMENT.

J. G. writes: What are platelets?

REPLY.

A name given to the colorless corpuscles in the blood. They number about 250,000 per cubic millimeter. They are much smaller than the red cells.

SOMETHING MISSING.

G. K. writes: What are deficiency diseases?

REPLY.

Those in which the body misbehaves because certain elements are lacking. Scurvy and rickets are typical examples.

RIDERS.

J. H. writes: I have heard that women who ride horseback cannot have children. Is this true?

REPLY.

No association whatsoever. I can recall dozens of expert horsewomen who have reared sizable families.

LIFESAVERS.

P. W. writes: How did vitamins get the name?

REPLY.

The word is a combination of "vita"—life and "amine"—a chemical substance. In general, they are considered requisite for the proper functioning of the body.

PELLAGRA.

S. R. writes: Can pellagra occur if a person eats a normal diet?

REPLY.

This deficiency disease may develop if certain food elements are absent or if they are not absorbed from the digestive tract.

INFECTION.

W. T. writes: What causes sties?

REPLY.

As a rule, tiny glands along the lids harbor the staphylococcus germ.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN THESE DAYS

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

The Bard Reborn.

To the protesting voices of the dead poets to whose ears have come the strains of radio's singing commercials now is added another:

And Shakespeare added: May the gods give aid!
Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow
Keeps up this fiendish noise, this caterwaul
Of soaps and soups and laxatival pills,
To the last syllable of their commercial time;
And all our yesterdays are dreams
forsworn,
Dim memories of things which once we read
In books long given over to the worms.
Out, out, damned scandal! If this long endure,
Give me the dusty death of common fools,
Not immortality with sounds like these.
Life is, at last, a carnival of hell,
Medleyed of accents false and falsely sweet
And hue and cry of bedlam and the zoo;
A tale of idiot vanity and lust
Yammered by idiots for their kind to hear.

—Autolycus.

Schooling.

The teacher of the third grade class in a Cicero school gave her pupils an animal quiz from a recent Reader's Digest. Each child wrote his answers on a slip of paper. In the ensuing discussion a bright eyed boy of 8 was asked his answer to the question: "Which animal, next to man, is most intelligent?" he hesitated a minute before reading: "Women or monkeys."

Total War.

Latest in war time veracity [reported by Helen M. Baker]: The loop restaurant which stated on its dinner menu, "Rolls and mutter."

Home Zoo.

Don McVicker, a little boy on the south side, has a choice collection of pets, including turtles, an alligator, and several hamsters [rats]. The other day he strolled past a neighbor's house with a fox on a leash. She asked its name. "Why," he said superciliously, "fox de luxe, of course."

Time Waits.

[From Clara Louise Kessler.]

I stood on the curb and watched the Memorial day parade — the perspiring faces, the jerky, determined steps of the young boys, and the flying banners straining in the wind. I heard the music of bands and the gusts of clapping and the occasional excited words of spectators, "There's George! See, over there!"

And then a slow rich voice came to me from one of the Negro soldiers marching by. "No, no! Time waits on us this morning." There was infinite assurance, infinite promise, in the tone. "No, no! Time waits on us this morning."

Do words — spoken words — ever die? To me the words of that Negro soldier are still alive. I can hear the rich timbre of the voice. I can hear the faith in it. "No, No! Time waits on us this morning."

Death is timeless! Death is infinity! Death waits for faltering, patient feet, for eager triumphant feet.

O, time, wait for us this Memorial day! Wait for our hearts to bear the bitter loss of our new American dead. Wait for our eyes to see and our ears to hear the truth in all things seen and heard. Wait for our souls to find that higher knowledge of "Freedom for all mankind."

Time waits for us this morning!

Literary Note.

A lady around town whose reading runs to the comic strips recently joined the Book of the Month club. She was given her choice of a free come-on book for joining and selected "Currier and Ives" because it seemed to be the most expensive and thus a bargain. At last report she was about to return it. There was no reading matter in it, and she had thought it the life story of two persons.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

GIVING THE COMMIES A HAND.

Chicago, June 2.—It is apparent that all THE TRIBUNE'S splendid work in exposing the Communist background and Communistic affiliations and purposes of the Abraham Lincoln school at 30 W. Washington street fell upon barren soil as far as some of our top ranking Chicago citizens are concerned.

The Communist bookstore and Communist transmission belts in general are now distributing an announcement of a meeting to be held at the Hamilton hotel, June 13, under the auspices of this Abraham Lincoln school. And who do you suppose the speakers are to be? Earl Browder, Prof. Earl Dean Howard of Northwestern university, and Mr. Guy Reed, vice president of the Harris Trust company. The subject—"Can We Have Full Employment in Post-War America?"

Now why would a professor from one of our leading universities and the vice president of one of our banks lend their names and persons to give prestige to an outfit like this and to help provide an audience for Earl Browder? The sponsors of this meeting are not interested in Reed's or Howard's views—they merely want to establish a sounding board for Browder's views. Nothing is gained by such collaboration—other than that these two gentlemen, either consciously or unconsciously, are helping to give prominence and prestige to a movement designed to destroy the very system of which they are a part.

To argue that this sort of collaboration is a wholesome part of the American way of free discussion adds up to about the same thing as saying that our people should join with the bundists in arguing and debating Nazi philosophy. Communism is just as dangerous to our American traditions as is fascism. Earl Browder has served in two federal penitentiaries. He was a draft evader in the first war. He is a Communist agitator in this one. G. W. R.

MARGE'S FARM COLUMN.

Chicago, May 25.—I want to express the enjoyment our whole family gets from reading Marge Lyon's strip in your Sunday paper. She is a remarkable writer and cleverly gets the real Ozark flavor in her stories. They are a grand addition to your paper and we do enjoy them immensely.

MRS. H. A. OETJEN.

LAUGHING AND LAUGHING.

Joliet, Ill., May 31.—News Item: "Laughing heartily the President said the question was a good one."

I think that the reporter missed something when he did not say, "Laughing—again, and again, and again."

BERTHA FIELDS.

SOWING A WHIRLWIND.

Chicago, May 30.—People are blind indeed if they cannot see that the present administration has been sowing a whirlwind, and that it will tax our ingenuity and common sense to keep us from reaping a hurricane.

THE CREEK FISHER.

STILL FOR A FOURTH TERM?

Chicago, May 31.—Prof. Albert Einstein said himself that he was not so sure of his theory of relativity. He probably has changed his view on war as a lot of others in the world have.

NORMAN B. ANDERSON.

"DON'T CHANGE."

Los Angeles, Cal., May 29.—Don't change a flat tire. Run on the rim.

AMBROSE BOWYER.

NO PRINCE CHARMING.

Chicago, June 1.—I'm tired of hearing these war brides gripe., What about all the so-called white collar girls, or other girls for that matter, who didn't meet their Prince Charming prior to the war?

I'm an ordinary stenographer, and while I earn what in peace times is considered a fine salary, I only realize a small percentage after taxes, bonds, etc., are deducted. My clothes are expensive. I can't afford night school any more or even a vacation this year. I'm tired of financing my own entertainment with other gals who are in the same predicament.

I know the boys are giving up plenty, but I sure wish I knew a few to write to as long as Prince Charming has been waylaid. What do you suppose my chances are of meeting him later on? I'm getting older every day.

Every one sympathizes with the war bride—she has at least memories; what have we got? Dreams? Maybe nightmares because we are getting along and no little house in the offing. Give us a thought, too, once in a while. M. S.

"AGAIN, AND AGAIN, AND AGAIN."

Chicago, Ill., May 31.—The fourth termers [and by the way don't you think they might more appropriately be called fourth termites?] are making quite a point of the fact that F. D. R. in that famous speech of his in which he promised our boys would not be sent to fight on foreign soil, added "unless we are attacked." It seems to me that the greater share of our boys are fighting Germany and unless my memory fails me, that country did not attack us. If it did, will not some of the "termites" tell me when and where and enlighten my ignorance? E. F.

RECONVERSION IN BRITAIN.

Cleveland, O., June 1.—This item appeared May 30 on the front page of the Cleveland Plain Dealer: "LONDON, May 30 [Tuesday]. — [AP]. — British automobile maufucturers expect government permission to start making a number of automobiles for export, mainly for colonial markets, within the next few weeks, the Daily Mail said today."

Very interesting! READER.

CASE OF THE MAGIC CARPET.

Chicago, June 1.—Whatever happened to Judge John R. McSweeney and his two pals, John Hughes and James Garrity? Is the judge still dishing out justice? Are the boys still free and footloose? Was the rug ever returned to its rightful owner? I think we taxpayers have a right to know about these things. NATHAN RABIN.

RED CROSS GIVES ACCOUNTING OF WAR TIME FUNDS

Expansion of Services Is Told in Report.

Washington, D. C., June 4 (AP).—The first full fiscal year of war sent Red Cross aid to 2,409,220 members of the army and navy and nearly quadrupled the expenditures for service personnel, their dependents, and disabled veterans, the Red Cross reported today.

The annual report, thru June 30, 1943, was delayed by the great volume of operations and joint audits with the army and navy on shared enterprises.

Expansion of Red Cross work was emphasized by the report of $42,391,000 expended for services to military personnel, their families, and war casualties.

Increase of 296 Per Cent.

That was an increase of 296 per cent over the $10,712,000 spent for such work in the previous year, during nearly half of which the United States was at peace.

Other indicators of the heavier burden:

Aids of various kinds were provided to 1,545,692 families of service men, an increase of 313 per cent from the previous fiscal year.

A rise from 291 to 734 in the daily average of communications received at headquarters for transmission between service people and anxious families.

Staff Is Increased.

Expansion of the Red Cross service staff from 3,088 to 9,636.

A special section of the report showed more than $17,000,000 in relief supplies shipped for allied prisoners of war in Europe and the Far East from Jan. 1, 1941, to June 30, 1943. During that period 3,337,954 standard food packages were dispatched, of which 155,952 went to Americans nationals.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Albert Hanson, Box 183, Story City, Ia.]

THE QUESTION.

What do you like best about your boss?

WHERE ASKED.

Continental Illinois Bank Bldg., 231 S. La Salle st.

THE ANSWERS.

Evelyn Leu, supervisor, 2348 Touhy av.—Any time something goes wrong in my department I know my boss is always behind me 100 per cent and won't let me take the blame for anything. He is really a grand person. I always feel free to go to him with my problems because I know he'll do everything he can to help me.

Lucille Rinnan, receptionist, Crystal Lake—My boss is such a good sport, never too serious minded. If I want time off and have a good excuse he usually lets me have it. Sometimes he doesn't even ask why I want the time off. That's another thing I like about him. He has confidence in me and trusts me.

Bernice Maslo, clerk, 2537 S. Sawyer av.—From what I've seen of my boss, he seems to be all right. He breezes in and out of the office all the time but whenever he is around he is always smiling. I feel perfectly at ease with him and speak to him as if he were one of us. He has the air of being a boss and yet it's just nice to have him around.

Eleanor Mozeris, clerk, 6843 S. Rockwell st.—I've never seen a more even tempered person than the boss. If I make a mistake he just calls me into the office, tells me what I've done wrong and that's that. He never reprimands me. It makes me feel bad whenever I make an error because he's so good about it. He's just a grand person to know.

Ursula Walsh, typist, 701 N. Lorel av.—It's unusual to find a woman boss that all the girls like, but I have a woman for a boss and she's perfectly wonderful. She's easy to get along with—minds her own business except when you ask her for advice, and she always gives good advice. She never loses her temper and is exceptionally patient.

Harryet Harnden, secretary, Lake Bluff—Whenever my boss makes a promise or a bargain he'll stick to it. He's extremely intelligent and an interesting conversationalist. He's fair and square and always to the point. He doesn't beat around the bush about anything. He has a marvelous sense of humor and loads of personality.

'Hot Rhythm' Isn't So Hot, as Movies Go

"HOT RHYTHM."

A Monogram picture, directed by William Beaudine, featuring Dona Drake and Robert Lowery, and presented at the Oriental.

By May Tinée.

Good Morning!

O, I wouldn't say it was so hot! Either the rhythm or the story. It's just one of those little alsorans which gets by without irking you too much because several members of the cast manage to keep you interested.

In the present instance, I refer to Dona Drake, Dorothy Lamour's protege, who is small and silky and Persian cat, with a low and seductive singing voice; Robert Lowery, who looks like Victor Mature in a nice way and is a right pleasing young actor, and Jerry Cooper, the trombone artist turned baritone, who, impersonating a band leader, Tommy Taylor, is chock-full of manly allure besides being one of the handsomest things about the piece.

The brainstorm which is the story has to do with the strange activities of radio artists and the boss and employes of a recording company. Dona plays a singer, Robert is a company employe, Tim Ryan is the boss, and Irene Ryan does one of her dimwit blonde impersonations as a secretary who would a singer be.

Well, even if the piece ISN'T so hot, the theater is nice and cool, and as I write this, WHEW—do I wish I were there!

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 4.—Miriam Hopkins is back in town and is being escorted by a handsome man—not John Gunther. She says she'd scarcely landed in New York when she was handed three plays. One of them is Rose Franken's; Guthrie McClintic wants her for one, and she's reading script of Clare Luce's latest. Miriam should take the advice of her friends and come west only when she has a picture. She's too good an actress to be wasted. That's what we do with her. . . . Charles Brackett and William Wilder have already put in a bid for Cary Grant to play "The Lost Week-End." I doubt if anything will come of it. . . . Warners are bringing out Carmen Cavallero and band for "Hollywood Canteen." He has done mighty well with his album of records. Eddie Cantor will be in the picture, too, which will scotch rumors that he and Warners have feuded. Eddie went to RKO to become a producer. No, it isn't true Warners are thinking of doing "The Life of Jack Benny" starring Paul Muni.

Miriam Hopkins. Nancy Kelly. Betty Hutton.

The Ho Hum Department.

Since Dorothy Parker's book is out, I'm reminded of the time she was about to write her autobiography. One of her friends [not Alexander Woollcott] said, "I suppose you'll title it, 'Here Comes Malicious.'" . . . I learned that George Jessel and Lois Andrews are working out a housekeeping budget preparatory to remarriage. I called George and he said, "No, we were rehearsing a test I'm making of Lois. She's doing a series of moods against a bar; I'm the bartender. But off screen I'm courting her, which is nice work—and I've got it to do." . . . Hunt Stromberg signed Connie Laird, 9 year old daughter of Grace Earle, former Ziegfeld beauty, after seeing her in "Guest in the House." . . . "Jean Valjean" had been postponed because Twentieth couldn't find a leading man, but it's back in work again. They found their man—Gregory Peck. . . . Hope Pine and Thomas give Nancy Kelly a good part in "Double Exposure." She was mighty good in "Show Business."

What Is Going On?

Much muttering is going on over the plushy publicity glad hand given Hal Wallis when he joined Paramount. The big boys might have waited for Buddy De Sylva to do the welcoming. If Hal can beat Buddy's record, there'll be no complaints. Paramount made $16,000,000 last year under Mr. De Sylva. That ain't hay! Nor was that the way it was when Buddy stepped into his job. Not that Buddy is complaining, but his friends resent the big push.

Snooper-Dooper.

Too bad "Here Come the WAVES" isn't ready for release now. It would help recruiting. I visited the set yesterday. Betty Hutton had them play back the record she made singing a duet with herself. It's her first doubling job. She plays a blonde and redhead. Sometimes she switches from one role to the other four times a day. That means new makeup and blonde hair washed and reset. It's an awful bother. Unlike many beginners, she was grateful for the patience of Mark Sandrich. Said she, "Never once has he complained of my being slow." She loved the scenes she did with Bing Crosby, who plays a Frank Sinatra character. Bing likes redheaded Betty, but she's off dancing with Sonny Tufts, so that leaves blonde Betty at a table with Bing, who grabs her and says, "Let's dance." During it he starts singing. She gasps, "Please, please don't do that." "What's the matter with my singing?" asks Bing. "I can't stand it," sighs Betty. He starts again. Then she swoons out of his arms and onto the floor. When redheaded Betty sees what's happened, she comes over and says, "What have you done to my baby sister?" "I just sang for her," says Bing. "O, you brute!" exclaims redheaded Betty. If that doesn't bring down the house, I miss my guess.

Why Not for a Good Cause?

The war has taken movie stars out of night clubs and into their own homes. If some of those parties could be seen by the public, they'd sell lots of war bonds. At the Gary Coopers the other night, there was Sonny Tufts singing duets with Bing Crosby; George Murphy doing an impromptu dance; Cooper playing the sweet potato; and Pat O'Brien reciting Mark Antony's oration [that is when they'd let him]. . . . Have you heard the one about the director working for Warners? Sam Goldwyn wanted him. Sam didn't know Warners were eager to get rid of him; he's never finished a picture there. Finally Goldwyn signed him. He made two pictures for Sam. Then Goldwyn ran into Jack Warner. He exclaimed, "Good heavens! Why didn't you tell me?" "Would Macy's tell Gimbel's if they snagged a lemon?" snapped Jack.

Polish Exile Tells Plight of Europe's Jews

The tribulations of thousands of Jews thruout central Europe were described yesterday to the 10th annual conference of the American Jewish Congress by Dr. Arieh Tartakower, who recently returned from a three month trip to Europe in the interest of Jews in exile. Dr. Tartakower, who fled from Poland four years ago, represents Polish Jewry in the United States and is also head of the rescue and relief department, World Jewish Congress.

Jewish soldiers in the Polish army are the latest victims of anti-Semitism, he asserted. "The hatred for Jews has infiltrated into the Polish army until it is almost impossible for Jewish soldiers to remain in uniform," he said.

While in England the Polish government in exile arranged for Dr. Tartakower to investigate the Polish army and to make recommendations to correct the situation. He recommended a change in the educational system of the Polish soldier and also urged that anti-Semitism be declared a crime and that the punishment be set by a military court.

Dr. Tartakower arrived here from Canada, where he addressed the Canadian Jewish Congress. Within a short time he will visit Latin American countries in the interest of the World Jewish Congress.

Max Bressler, president of the International Merchandise Company, 305 W. Adams st., was elected president of the Chicago division of the American Jewish Congress, which has a membership of more than 75,000. Other officers include Henry Wineberg, Miss Etta Nierman, and David Gilbert, vice presidents; Harry Elman, treasurer, and Sidney Schonberger, secretary.

The conference adopted a resolution condemning the white paper issued by the British government in 1939 which limits Jewish immigration to Palestine. The conference also pledged full support and participation in the national war effort.

The Chicago division of the American Jewish Congress will continue to prepare for the reconstruction of Jewish life in Europe after the war, fight the rise of anti-Semitism, and work for the establishment of a national Jewish home in Palestine, according to the new president.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

There is a special significance in the fact that a player bids a suit and then fails to lead it against a no trump contract. Consider this case:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

	♥ A Q J 10
	♦ 6 4 3
	♣ 5 4 3 2
WEST		EAST
♠ A Q 6 4 3		♠ 10 2
♥ 9 5 2		♥ 8 7 4 3
♦ K 9		♦ A 8 5 2
♣ J 10 8		♣ K 9 7
	SOUTH
	♠ K J 8 5
	♥ K 6
	♦ Q J 10 7
	♣ A Q 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	1 spade	2 hearts	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

This bidding is merely reported, not recommended.

West realized that a spade lead would probably surrender a trick without the great advantage of establishing the rest of the spade suit, and therefore opened the jack of clubs. Declarer won with the queen and ran off his four heart tricks, discarding a spade and a club from the closed hand. He then led a diamond from dummy. East, woodenly following the "rule" of second-hand-low, played the deuce, and when declarer put in the queen, West had no choice but to win with the king.

Now, still unwilling to lead up to South's marked king of spades, West led another club. Declarer won and knocked out the diamond ace. East returned the spade ten, but the best West could do now was to cash two spade tricks and a club. The contract was home.

If East had correctly put up the diamond ace on the first lead of that suit, and returned the spade ten, declarer would not have made a single diamond trick, and the contract would have been defeated.

Class Hatreds Peril All, Says De Paul Head

Class consciousness and antagonism in the United States are worse enemies of the nation than the axis, the Very Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, president of De Paul university, said yesterday in a baccalaureate sermon to the graduating group of 288 students. The services were held in St. Vincent's church, 1010 Webster st.

Father O'Connell.

Father O'Connell condemned "the contention of so many agitators" that the interests of labor, management, and farmer are diametrically opposed. He asserted that the most serious threat to the future happiness of the United States is class hatred.

"The idea that Jews or Catholics or colored people, or whatever group you will, must be curbed and persecuted is a cancer eating into the vitals of our national strength," he asserted. "It will topple over the magnificent edifice of our economic and commercial greatness. Whoever promotes divisions among the people of this country is our greatest enemy."

The services preceded the 46th annual convocation of the university, which will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. in Orchestra hall.

Father O'Connell will confer degrees upon the 228 graduates and 272 nurses who have taken courses in the 10 hospitals affiliated with De Paul.

The Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, archbishop of Chicago and chancellor of De Paul, will make the commencement address and confer honorary doctor of law degrees upon Charles J. Hardy of New York, president of the American Car and Foundry company, and the Rev. John T. S. Mao, who until recently was associated with the Catholic Chinese mission and is now procurator of the Nanking vicariate.

Workers Busy Preparing for Wheaton Show

BY JUDITH CASS.

"HELP Wanted," the sign that appears in so many windows these days, has become the slogan for the annual Galloping Hills Horse show, planned for Sunday, June 25, at the Louis F. Swifts' Wheaton farm of the same name. The help that Mrs. Swift will get in putting on her show will be entirely voluntary and the reward will be the fun that every one will have and the satisfaction that will come from achieving a smoothly run and successful venture.

Mrs. Swift already has a good sized committee at work on plans for the show, which promises to be the largest ever held at Galloping Hills. More than 200 entries have already been made. She still needs horse show enthusiasts to sell programs and refreshments, to take tickets at the gates, and to do the dozens of other chores in connection with the day-long affair.

Members of the Town and Country Equestrian association have been invited to ride en masse to the show and to participate in the events, including two classes especially for that membership. Lt. Col. Henry Leonard of Colorado Springs, Colo., regarded as one of the top horse show judges, will officiate in the judge's ring, and Mrs. William Swift will be ringmaster, awarding trophies and ribbons.

One of the largest classes will be the jumping competition for the Sonny Ripley Memorial trophy, which Mrs. Louis Swift won last year. Mrs. Donald Easter, who won the family class trophy last year, is putting it up for a similar class in this show, and Mrs. William Swift, George Rossiter, and Charles Steele are giving other trophies. A substantial luncheon will be served at the Galloping Hills club, which will be set up for the day and presided over as usual by Rochester, formerly a butler and now employed in a defense plant. Sandwiches, soft drinks, and beer will be dispensed from stands. The Theodore Mohlmans, Stanley Luke, Miss Jane Markman, Mrs. Easter, and Fred Willis of Wheaton, who is accepting entries, are a few of those already working nights and Sundays to get the show and the show grounds ready.

Weddings Announced.

Announcement is made of the marriage last Saturday of Mrs. Percival H. Truman and Dr. O. F. Long, both of Evanston, which took place in the afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Murdough, also of Evanston. The Rev. John J. Wellmuth of Loyola university read the ceremony in the presence of members of both families.

Dr. Long, who retired from the faculty of Northwestern university four years ago, has a daughter and two sons who were not present, however, as their military duties prevented them from coming to Chicago. They are Lt. Margaret A. Long, who is at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; Lt. Littleton Long, who is stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C., and Pvt. Robert K. Long, who is at Camp Fannin, Tex.

The bride's son, Francis H. Truman of Syracuse, N. Y., and daughter, Mrs. Charles F. Bullard of Rochester, N. Y., came here for the occasion. Following a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Long will be at home in Evanston.

From Mrs. LeRoy M. Miller of Maplewood, N. J., comes news that her daughter, Ruth Virginia, and Staff Sgt. Arthur Leonard Ellis, son of Mrs. C. Groverman Ellis of Wayne and Gloucester, Mass., will be married next Saturday. The wedding will take place in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Runkle Fisher of Oldwick, N. J., with members of the immediate families present.

Miss Miller, whose father was the late Mr. Miller of Oldwick, is a graduate of Wilson college. Sgt. Ellis, a grandson of Arthur C. Leonard of Chicago and Gloucester, was graduated from Governor Dummer academy and attended Lafayette college.

Engagements Announced.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Ann Elizabeth Glasner, daughter of Mrs. William L. Koehne and of R. W. Glasner of Chicago, to Lt. William

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

In anticipation of the participation of the women's division of the war finance committee of Chicago and Cook county in the fifth war loan drive, which opens on June 12, the speakers' bureau and representatives of 64 Chicago communities will assemble at 3:30 p. m. today at 1500 Lake Shore dr. for last minute instructions. More than 200 trained speakers are enrolled as active members of the committee.

Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, chairman of the committee, and her co-chairmen, Mrs. A. O. Hartmann, Mrs. Gerhardt F. Meyne, Mrs. Fred Schaefer, and Mrs. Glenn Frank, will be hostesses and will present the men and women who will be responsible for the success of the campaign. Among these will be Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the fifth war loan in the county, and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, chairman of the women's division.

The 30 uniformed members of the Chicago officers' unit of the National Security Women's corps will observe the unit's first anniversary with a dinner-dance at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Bismarck hotel. Mrs. Charles E. Peace, chairman of bond instruction for the women's division of the war finance committee of Chicago and Cook county, will be the speaker.

The NSWC members are business women who devote their evening hours to war projects, including war bond drives, WAC recruiting, assisting in clerical capacities at selective service boards, assisting the Illinois reserve militia and the American Legion, selling poppies for the Legion, and entertaining convalescent service men at the Marine hospital.

Now that the unit has worked for a year and has had officers' training, groups under the officers will be opened thruout Chicago. The parent corps, in New York state, has 3,000 in its ranks. Chicago already has a junior unit of 150 young women of high school age.

Mrs. Betty Krohn, founder of the Chicago unit, is its captain. Among officers on her staff are Lt. Marion Whedon, adjutant; Staff Sgt. Gertrude Pelzman, treasurer, and Staff Sgt. Sarah Fast, recruiting chairman and chairman of the dance.

Business women interested in joining the NSWC are invited to call Mrs. Krohn at Delaware 1343, or to write to her at 154 E. Superior st., headquarters of the unit.

Mrs. Alonzo Newton Benn of Chicago, general vice chairman of the national D. A. R. committee on the correct use of the flag, will lecture at 7:30 o'clock tonight before members of the Navy Mothers' Club of Chicago in the Medinah club.

Thursday will be June "coffee time" for the club at headquarters, 335 N. Michigan av. The monthly social sessions, which offer book reviews, musicals, and lectures, are among the most popular with members, all of whom have sons in the maritime services.

Mrs. Gordon Fox, chairman of the Mothers' hospital committee, has announced that men in navy hospitals in the Chicago area are requesting wash cloths. She is working to collect as many as possible for distribution.

Mrs. William Most's housing committee has reported that apartments have been found for more than 100 navy men and their families during the last month.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

Review Member's Novel for Woman's Club Today

At a meeting of the Woman's City Club of Chicago at 1:30 p. m. today at headquarters, 410 S. Michigan av., Mrs. Moses L. Purvin will review "Nothing as Before," a first novel by a club member, Miss Dorothy Sparks. Miss Maude Tiffany's current book review committee arranged the program. Standing committee reports will be heard at a board of managers' meeting at 10:30 a. m.

The Phi Kappa Sigma Mother's club of Northwestern university will close the season with a luncheon meeting at 12:30 p. m. today in the Dominion room, at 501 Davis st., Evanston.

Buying Summer Footwear Still Has Its Joys

BY REA SEEGER.

The need of a pair of summer slippers suggests a pleasant shopping trip. There's no dash to a favorite shoe shop, no succumbing to a fancy pair seen in a shop window; just the time tested routine of weighing, planning, and making comparisons. This important purchase must last out the summer and make a good impression next summer, too, if you would prove your shopping shrewdness.

There are a few of the usual white trimmed with brown [toe tips, heels and back sections] street or all-purpose pumps, there are smooth patrician white suedes perforated decoratively for summer comfort, and there are fast vanishing supplies of white kidskins. The pre-war abundance of new and exciting styles is a memory—and a dream of the future.

All these take your ration stamps. A few summer models are available without the stamp, but these are the pumps and sandals covered with sailcloth and printed cottons, and the good looking footwear made with rope soles. Many are surprisingly smart when worn with a backless dress, topped with a bolero. High colored sling strap wedge pumps with the rope soles come in white, black, green, scarlet, brown, tan, and some roman striped materials. Some shoe shops offer these inexpensive and stamp free rope sole models, to be dyed the color you crave to match or contrast a costume.

Among the shoes that require stamps are the new natural toned, crash covered walking pumps and sandals. These have valuable leather soles with toe tips, heels, and back sections sewed to the cool looking effective crash. Priced less than suede pumps and sandals, they are ideal alternates for all leather models. Brides will still delight in finding stamp free satin sandals, which are really evening or dancing sandals, but are simple enough to wear with summer bridal gowns of cotton or silk.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

In Absentia.

What good is worry? None, I've found
For on the day that I'm home sick
I'm wondering if my boss' work
Is going smoothly, fast, and slick!

Who's answering his telephone?
And telling him "it's time to eat?"
And do his letters look okay?
I hope his office stays quite neat!

But—on the next day, back at work,
[What good is worry, anyway?]
My boss says, "Tell me what went on While I was absent yesterday!"

The Forward Glance.

"The war has smashed tradition. From now on a female may talk about carburetors, cams, gears, grommets, welding, or wiring without anybody's thinking it is strange. As to jobs, generally there will be a free choice in the future. The main thing is not to let it go to our heads. The fact that we, as women, are free to try any job does not mean that we suddenly have acquired the ability to do every job as well as men can, or that we have lost the ability to do some jobs better than men. On the average, women are not as strong physically as men. On the average they are more painstaking and more accurate.

"Most industries will agree that what they look for in women employees is the same thing they look for in men! Intelligence, energy, and friendliness, the desire and ambition to study to improve themselves, and all other qualities that make a good individual. . . . An employee who can learn her job well and also can look ahead, see opportunities and plans for the future—in other words—one who has vision plus courage is going to be successful and will be an asset to any organization.

"Above all, industry desires loyalty from its employes, men or women. When we work for a company we ought to work for it. We ought to wish to see it succeed and grow and prosper and when the time comes that we do not feel that way about it, we ought to get out. Loyalty in business is a quality with which we could do more in many places and on the whole women have more of that valuable asset."

From an address by Ruth Leach, vice president of International Business Machine.

White Collar Comment.

It's Bruin Blarney's comment: "A girl who complains she is up to her neck in work is usually up to her level!"

Feminine Firsts.

Ninety-nine-year-old Police Gazette has, for the first time, a woman editor, good-looking Edythe Farrell. . . . The first general's daughter [to come to our notice] who has enlisted in the WAC is Susan B. Somervell, daughter of Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, commanding general of the army service forces. . . . Julia C. Stevens, the energetic woman who brought her candy company from a kettle on the kitchen stove of her farm home to the business it is today, was the first woman in the middle west to receive the gold American citizenship medal, highest civilian award given by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Thru the Looking Glass

The woman all other women envy and all men admire is the one who has the knack of looking cool and crisp on the hottest days. Some have it, as we women all acknowledge enviously. More don't.

We've tried to analyze this cool freshness in a wilting world—and the best answer we can find is that it's based on cleanliness. Not just the ordinary, conscientious cleanliness all civilized persons cultivate, but a super-cleanliness, a meticulousness that leaves no item of grooming out of the picture.

If you want to look fresh you'll have to freshen your makeup not two or three times a day, but four or five or even six. And your makeup will be simple to begin with. In summer, you'll keep your hair cleaner than usual, and above all better brushed and combed than usual. You may like the effect of charming disorder in hair arrangement most months of the year; in summer the c. d. will look merely hot and messy.

Your clothing has to be fresh and clean from the inside out, if you want to feel and look clean. Fresh undies every day, by all means. Outer clothing should be in cool colors and the white in your dress should be be white, not grimy. If you tuck a ribbon in your hair be sure it's clean and well pressed. Put away your heavy pocketbooks; change to fabric ones, perhaps, but make sure they're clean. A little spot looks somehow bigger and messier in steamy weather. Your shoes must be shined, your leg makeup flawless.

The bandbox look of which you're jealous in other women can be yours too. It's just a matter of being extrafussy about tidiness of detail plus basic cleanliness. Brushing, scrubbing, and orderliness in assembling your clothes will make you look cool and crisp as a lettuce leaf too! ELEANOR NANGLE.

Luncheon in Wilmette.

A luncheon meeting and program at the Michigan Shores club in Wilmette at 1 p. m. on Saturday, June 17, will close yearly activities for the Southern Seminary Alumnae association.

Sally Reports 2 Watches and Clock Needed

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Sgt. R. C. sends in a request which we hope can be filled, in spite of the scarcity of the needed item.

"Dear Miss Brown:

"This may seem an unusual request, but on returning to the United States after serving overseas I have found that it is impossible to purchase an alarm clock at any price. I have quarters off the post, and it is absolutely necessary that I reach camp on time in the morning. I thought it might be possible that some one of your readers had an old alarm clock which was no longer needed. I would certainly be grateful for it."

This man is stationed in a very small town in a southern state. Further information will be provided to any interested reader.

A case worker has requested our assistance in obtaining a watch with a second hand for a young girl who is about to enter training as a nurse. Because she has no family, the agency has been assisting her with some of the items needed for this training, but it cannot provide a watch, which is a requirement.

M. R. writes: "I have three brothers in the armed forces. Recently one of them, stationed in Italy, asked me to obtain a pocket watch for him, since he has lost his wristwatch. It need not be an expensive watch. One of the cheaper makes would be most satisfactory, if it keeps good time. I have been unable to purchase such a watch in our vicinity."

Ross Mackinnan, son of Col. and Mrs. W. R. Mackinnan of Fort Sheridan, Ill. The wedding will take place in July. Miss Glasner is now in training at the Presbyterian hospital. Both she and her fiancé, who is studying with the army engineers at Salina, Kas., attended Lake Forest college.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Van Patten of Evanston have announced the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to John Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Wilson, also of Evanston. Mr. Wilson has just returned from 15 months' service overseas with the American field service, having enlisted while a student at Northwestern university. As an ambulance driver he saw action in Syria and North Africa and later was stationed in Italy.

Here and There.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Kerner [Diana Winston] are being congratulated on the birth of their first child, Elizabeth Diana, last Wednesday at Lying-In hospital. The baby is the granddaughter of Mrs. Grover Winston and of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Kerner of New York.

The Chicagoans who will receive their degrees at the 141st annual commencement of Bradford Junior college today are Miss Barbara Millikin, daughter of the Gaylord D. Millikins of Glencoe; Miss Lois Andreae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Andreae of Winnetka; Miss Marian Jackman, daughter of the Alan Jackmans of Evanston; Miss Lois Kunze, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Kunze of Kenilworth, and Miss Dorenda Penfield, daughter of the Samuel R. Penfields of Glencoe.

The annual spring luncheon of the Service club will be held at 12:30 p. m. today at the Woman's Athletic club.

SYNOPSIS: Joseph Higgins, postman, delivers seven letters accepting service in Heron's Park Military hospital from Dr. Gervase Eden, Jane Woods, Esther Sanson, Dr. Moon, Dr. Barnes, Frederica Linley, and Nurse Marion Bates. Within a year one of them will die a self-confessed murderer. Dr. Eden tires of his flirtation with Sister Bates. It's love at first sight when Dr. Barnes sees Frederica. During an air raid Esther remains on duty to help Frederica. Joseph Higgins is brought in with a fractured femur. A second victim arrives. During a lull, Dr. Barnes comes to the booth to see Freddi. He is followed by Dr. Eden, who kisses her. Sister Bates, finding Gervase in the booth, creates a scene. To protect Freddi, Woods lures Gervase into a flirtation. Esther takes Higgins to the operating theater. Dr. Barnes gives the anesthetic, under which Higgins dies. The night Higgins was admitted to the hospital, a masked figure took the key to the operating theater from its hook. Inspector Cockrill asks Dr. Barnes to demonstrate his anesthetizing apparatus. At a hospital party, Bates declares she has proof of the murder and goes to get it. Woods finds her, murdered, in the operating theater. The inspector summons Dr. Moon, Dr. Eden, Dr. Barnes, Woods, Freddi, and Esther. None has an alibi. As Cockrill outlines his idea of the killing, Esther becomes hysterical. Next morning Esther finds Freddi overcome by gas. A clothes peg had been inserted in her window. Esther falls in love with William, the second air raid victim. Maj. Moon saw Gervase enter the nurses' cottage. Cockrill questions William about the three nurses' aids.

OPERATION NECESSARY.

Woody bent forward and kissed Gervase lightly, so that he should not see the tears in her eyes.

Maj. Moon appeared at a trot, advancing toward them across the circular hall. "Sorry I'm late; hasn't Esther turned up yet?"

"Here she is now," said Eden.

She came and joined them. "Did you call me?"

"Yes, child come here. We wanted to catch you before you went on night duty," said Moon. He looked at her with troubled blue eyes. "We have a little bit of news for you that you're not going to like very much. . . . It isn't serious, Esther, and you mustn't upset yourself, but Eden and I have been talking over your young man's fracture and we don't quite like the way it's going. We think we ought to have him along to the theater and open up his leg."

She stared at him, horrified. "O, Maj. Moon—no!"

"I'm afraid we must, Esther," said Eden, definitely. "There's nothing to worry about, ducky. We think there's a bit of pus there, that's all, and it would be better to take out the stitches and drain the wound."

"Do you mean he's getting an infection?"

"Just a spot, Esther—it so often happens; but we can clear it up all right."

Cockrill passed thru the hall still bent upon his ceaseless investigations. He saw Woods among the little group, and, recollecting William's half recognition of her voice, decided to enter into conversation, in the vague hope of surprising something out of her. In the dim light he did not notice the distress upon Esther's face until it was too late to draw back. Maj. Moon passed it off with a casual explanation: "She's a little bit upset; we're going to do a small job on her beloved and she doesn't like it."

"It's not the danger; it's just that I—I can't bear to think of him being ill or in pain.

"He'll be much more comfortable after this, Esther," promised Gervase.

Cockrill had been putting two and two together. "Is it young Will Ferguson that you're talking about? I was down there seeing him this afternoon. . . ."

"Miss Sanson's engaged to him," explained Eden.

Cockrill turned around upon her. "Are you indeed, Esther? I congratulate you; I've known him since he was a boy—he's a very charming fellow."

"He's a darling, Esther," agreed Woods, enthusiastically.

She looked up in surprise. "Have you been to see him at last, Woody?"

"Yes, I introduced myself this evening, after operating had finished in the theater; he's sweet, darling. He told me he'd been having a chat with you, Inspector."

"I was asking him about Higgins," said Cockrill.

"He didn't know Higgins," said Esther. "He was brought in after him."

"Yes, but only because he took longer to get himself dug out. He used to work for Higgins—they'd been thru all the blitzes together, and they were sitting talking about the old days, when the bomb hit them."

"Listening to the German radio," said Cockrill.

"Yes, he was telling me about that," said Woody. "It was extraordinary how—how the wireless went on and on talking, when everything else all around them had been shattered."

Woods looked at her watch. "Esther, isn't it time you went on duty, my pet?"

"I suppose it is," said Esther. "I'd better go. I—I don't know how I'm going to face William!" She stood for a moment with her head bent, her hands pressed against her forehead.

"We've explained everything to him, my dear," said Maj. Moon. "He's not worrying a bit; it's only a little thing, nothing to be anxious about."

"Higgins' operation was nothing to be anxious about," said Esther suddenly, dropping her hands and staring at them, white faced, with burning eyes. "But he died. I'm afraid," cried Esther. "I'm terrified! Supposing William were to die, too."

"O, nonsense, Esther darling," said Woods. "Why should William die? Who on earth would want to kill him?"

"Who would have wanted to kill Higgins?" said Esther.

"Perhaps you would like to get some one else to do the operation, Esther?" suggested Maj. Moon gently. "Perkins did him originally, of course, but he's on seven day's leave. We could fix up for Jones to do it, or Greenaway."

"No, no, Maj. Moon, of course you must operate; of course you must! Gervase, you'll be assisting, won't you?"

"I was supposed to be," said Eden.

"Yes, do; do assist. You must. Please don't think . . . it's awful of me even to seem to suggest that I don't trust you to do the very best for William. I know you will; of course I do. Do forgive me, everybody; it's only that . . . I'm sort of upset . . . If anything should happen to him . . ." She left them abruptly and ran off to her ward.

"Poor child; she's so much in love," said Maj. Moon, looking after her.

"Is the operation really nothing serious?" asked Cockrill, curiously.

"Not serious at all; it would be if it were left, of course. He's developing osteomyelitis, and we must drain the wound, that's all."

"Osteo-what?" said Cockrill crossly; he hated to be ignorant of what other people clearly understood.

"Osteomyelitis—infection of the bone, inspector. We take out the stitches and pack the wound open so that the pus can't collect; and cover the whole thing with plaster of Paris, instead of having him strung up to an extension."

"Why is he strung up anyway?" said Cockie.

"Well, the bones are fractured and they were overlapping; that usually happens. The extension pulls them out so that the broken ends can meet and unite again. I think that about explains it, eh, Eden?"

"A most masterly exposition," said Grevase.

"So you see it's all very simple, Cockrill. There is a little infection; pus is forming and it mustn't be allowed to collect; so we arrange matters so that it can drain away."

"It may sound simple to you; it's double Dutch to me," said Cockie; he added, gently probing: "I can't even visualize how you go about it."

Whether bacon is bought by the slab, square, or slice, it won't go to waste, because every one likes it for breakfast, lunch, or dinner. Broil or pan-fry the bacon for breakfast, put it into sandwiches for lunch, and include it in main dishes for dinner.

A few extra strips of crisp bacon can be crumbled into potato or vegetable salad, wilted greens, cream soups, muffins, waffles, or griddle cakes, and the drippings can be saved for muffin batters, gravies, seasoning vegetables, and pan-frying other foods.

Here are a few ideas for bacon in main dish roles:

Noodle Scramble with Bacon.
[Serves four.]

1 small package noodles
½ pound bacon
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup grated onion
¼ cup chopped parsley

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Place sliced bacon in cold skillet and cook slowly, pouring off fat as it collects. Remove cooked bacon and leave 2 tablespoons drippings in the pan. Add milk, pepper, onion, and parsley to beaten eggs. Combine cooked noodles with this mixture and cook in bacon fat until heated thru. Serve on a hot chop plate surrounded with bacon.

Bacon-Cheese Fondue.
[Serves six.]

1 pound bacon
1 cup milk
3 eggs, separated
1 cup bread cubes
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup grated sharp cheese

Use either sliced bacon or bacon in one piece. Cut bacon into ½ inch strips or cubes. Fry slowly until browned and crisp; drain on absorbent paper. Scald milk over hot water, beat egg yolks until thick and add the milk. Add bread cubes and Worcestershire sauce. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and let mixture cool. Add bacon and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased baking dish. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 55 minutes. Serve immediately.

Bacon Fry with Cream Gravy.
[Serves six.]

1 pound bacon, in 1 piece
½ cup corn meal
1 slice onion
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk

Cut bacon into strips ½ inch thick and cover with boiling water. Drain and dredge in corn meal. Fry slowly, turning to brown, until crisp and cooked. Remove from pan and keep warm. Drain off bacon drippings, leaving 2 tablespoons in pan. Add onion slice and flour to pan, cook slowly until onion and flour are browned. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove onion. Serve gravy on bacon strips.

Blame Parents for Destructive Trait in Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Won't you write something about little children who come to call with their parents, or to visit you for a while, and who handle everything in your house, and sometimes break some cherished possession, or else leave the place a shambles?"

Letters like this keep coming in to me at regular intervals and need an answer. Also they strike an answering chord, because I have had just such experiences, and have even had clues as to why they happen. For instance:

A dear friend who some years ago went to such a distant land to live that we never expected to see him again, gave me an amber cigarette holder, rimmed with gold, in one of those quaint leather cases lined with velvet. I kept it in the drawer of a lamp table with other small things we used in the living room.

One day a small boy of 5 whom we knew to be destructive came to see us. I was called to the phone, and when I returned to the room the lamp table drawer was open and half the articles out. In one hand our young neighbor had my little leather case, open, and in the other, broken in two, the amber cigarette holder.

I happened to know that this little boy's parents practically never used to allow their children in the house, except in the cellar, and that they were fantastically particular about all their possessions, altho blandly indifferent to what happened to any one else's garden or furniture.

And we had a young cousin years ago whose mother virtually followed him around with dustcloth and brush, who used to go actually berserk when he entered our domain.

I have noticed that visiting children's complete disregard of your home and belongings usually can be traced to one of two causes. Either they are "hounded" by the perfect housekeeper type of mother, or their parents are themselves indifferent, disorderly and shiftless about their home possessions. Surely neither is right, nor good for a child.

Jewish People's Choral Society Heard in Recital

The Jewish People's Choral society, under the direction of Eugene Malek, celebrated its golden jubilee at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, opening its performance with excerpts from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," dedicated to the heroes of the Warsaw ghetto, and closing with one of Schubert's last works, the rarely heard "Miriam's Song," with Henrietta Chase as competent soloist. The program also held a kind of Yiddish "Ballad for Americans," with Hans Alten as baritone soloist and Morris Mason as narrator.

The chorus sings with emotional impact and a rhythmic enthusiasm particularly suited to a rollicking folk song like "Oy, a libe iz a umglik," sung under Mr. Malek's direction, and to a lively marching song led by a stalwart in khaki, who was a former conducter, unless my translating neighbor was mistaken. The program was shared by Benjamin Zemach, once a member of the Habima theater, who appeared in traditional and other dances.

"Fantasorama," described as a ballet in four episodes and prologue, lured me to the Eighth Street theater yesterday afternoon, where some little Negro dancers were prepared to present a program ranging from mythology thru the ages to Pearl Harbor, with stopovers from "Shoo Shoo Baby" to the famous "Pas de Quatre" of rival ballerinas. After waiting almost an hour for a belated curtain to rise, I discovered that some costumes were missing, and reluctantly gave up the whole idea.—C. C.

CUBS WIN AND TIE; SOX TAKE FOURTH PLACE

NORTH SIDERS TRIUMPH, 6-5, IN BROOKLYN

Second Game Ends in 10th, 8-8.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 4.—The versatile Cubs who are languishing in the National league cellar, today demonstrated why there is reason to suspect they may get out of the place eventually and also why there may be undue delay in the escape. They bounced forth with a nine inning jousting to win the first half of a double header from the Dodgers and then paraded to a six run lead in the second affair. But the enemy tied the latter argument in the ninth and it was called in the tenth because of darkness. The scores were 6 to 5 and 8 apiece.

Into the dizzy program before 22,675 customers were packed all the things that happen only in Brooklyn. There were 19 Dodgers in each game. Paul Derringer blew a three-run edge in the first game, thus making it necessary for the Cubs to put over the tying and winning runs in the ninth.

Eight Runs in Two Innings.

In the second game, aided by Phil Cavarretta's and Andy Pafko's homers and a Bill Nicholson triple the Cubs piled up eight runs in two successive innings to fix Paul Erickson with an 8 to 2 lead. But things happened to young Paul and old Claude Passeau was summoned but he wasn't equal to the task.

The Cubs applied the finishing touch in the first game against Calvin Coolidge McLish, the fourth of five Dodger pitchers given employment. After getting one out in the ninth McLish walked both Cavarretta and Nicholson so the more experienced Curt Davis was summoned to straighten out the situation.

Fumble Aids Cub Cause.

Davis might have turned the trick if Ed Basinski hadn't fumbled Pafko's roller, filling the bases. Don Dallessandro uncorked a long fly on which Cavarretta registered the tying run and Don Johnson dissolved the deadlock by singling Nicholson across the plate.

The Dodgers got the jump in the first game by scoring once on Derringer in the second inning, but it was a skimpy dividend for the amount of hitting involved. Walker's single, Schultz' double, and a walk to Owen filled the bases with none out. Hughes put a crimp in the enemy effort by grabbing Bragan's grounder, stepping on third to force Schultz, and firing the ball to the plate in time for Holm to tag Walker. Basinski then singled to score Owen.

A pass to Schuster started the Cubs on their four run splurge in the fifth. With one out Cavarretta singled and Nicholson was credited with a single on a roller fumbled by Schultz. This filled the bases and Pafko drove in two of the boys by singling. Dallessandro also singled to score Nicholson and when

As Simple as That.

Don Hutson, great forward pass catching end of the Green Bay Packers, gave a talk in which he explained that snaring passes "is just as easy as can be." Here's his recipe: First, the receiver must get in the open, then keep his eye on the ball. Change of pace and other tricks are essential. And then, quotes Hutson, "catching the ball is fundamental." —J'Oshkosh.

O, Poet Divine.

O, Poet Divine, this verse of mine,
I humbly dedicate to Thee,
My better thoughts are simply Thine—
The voice of the Divine in me;
Use me within Thy lyrics, Lord,
Along with flowers, birds, and trees,
To be a rhyming, living word
In Thy great poem of perfect peace.

O, Poet Divine, this world of Thine
'Tis beautiful in spite of war,
It is a sonnet grand, divine—

In this great poem, each thought of Thine
I'll treasure in my soul, until
This awkward wayward heart of mine
Shall sense the rhythm of Thy will.

Comes now the open season for newspaper items akin to the following:

"Mr. Budworth Wymer, while working in his victory garden the night it didn't rain last week, turned up a silver stem winding watch which he had lost 37 years ago and which had been a wedding gift from the Jolly Twelve club to which Budworth had belonged at the time. When found, the watch was still growing—I mean going—I mean—well, anyhow, Bud found the watch."

"Miss Etta Mae Trimble, while working in her victory garden on the west edge of town, spaded up her engagement ring which she had lost while returning from a barn-raising at a neighbor's in the spring of 1902. A tragic sidelight on the finding of the gem after all these years was the recollection by early settlers that Miss Trimble's fiance, Luther Ondyke, refusing to believe she had lost the ring but thinking she had traded it in on a used car, left for the Boer war. Or was it the Foreign Legion? Anyhow, he never was heard from again. Congratulations, Etta Mae, on finding the ring, we mean."

A Satisfaction.

"I used to be a floor walker," said Sam,
"But I became a cop the other day
Because I never cared a tinker's dam
For walking floors, despite the fancy pay;
It's pretty hard to warm up to a job
Where you are being summoned here and there
To listen to some angry woman sob
Because she thinks the clerks have been unfair.
"Perhaps I do more walking on my beat
Than when I used to hustle down the aisles,
And yet in spite of blisters on my feet
My deepest worries have been turned to smiles;
For now, altho the work hours may be long,
I know the customer is always wrong."

TIGERS, RED SOX DIVIDE IN WAR RELIEF BATTLES

30,000 See Players Fight on Field.

Detroit, Mich., June 4 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox divided a war relief double header today before 30,000 spectators, Detroit taking the first game, 2 to 1, for Paul Trout's seventh victory and Boston winning the second, 5 to 1.

Pinky Higgins' homer was the only run off Rookie Clem Hausmann in the second game.

Hausmann turned in a seven hitter for his second victory while Boston pounded Rookie Ruffus Gentry and two successors for nine safeties. Manager Joe Cronin's fly scored what proved to be the winning run in the first inning.

The only run off Trout was unearned and came in the sixth when Joe Orengo muffed an infield fly.

Eddie Mayo of Detroit and Skeeter Newsome of Boston were chased by Umpire Cal Hubbard in the second game for fighting at second base after Newsome doubled in the eighth. Mayo scored a knockdown before they were parted. Scores:

IRISH DEFEAT FREEMAN FIELD IN 14TH, 4 TO 3

Notre Dame, Ind., June 4 [Special].—Notre Dame won a 14 inning battle from Freeman field today, Paul Lammers outlasting two visiting pitchers to turn in a 4 to 3 victory, his first of the season.

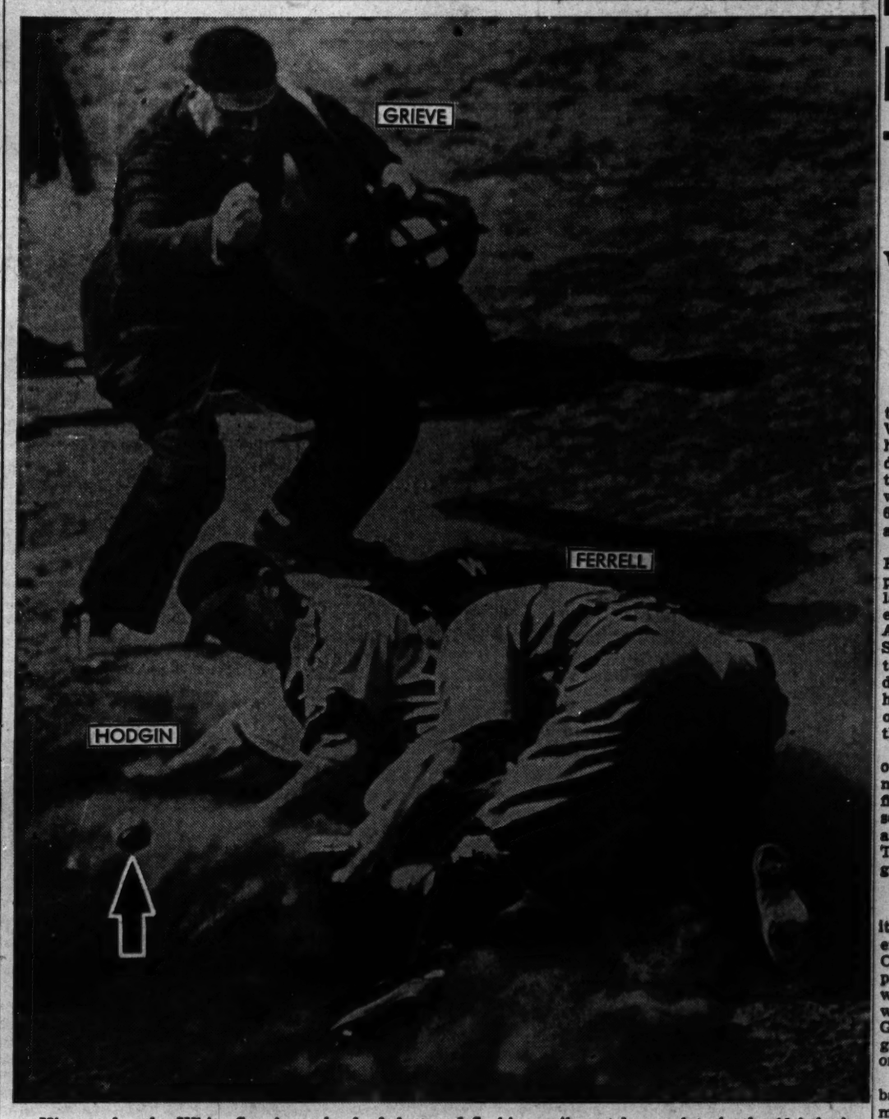
Both teams scored single runs in the first and Freeman took a 2 to 1 lead in the sixth when Charley Crimmins, former Irish star, scored Al Schwartz with a single. Notre Dame tied the score in the seventh on singles by Lammers, Bob Clanchetti and Len Scarpelli.

The Irish went ahead in the eighth on Phil Reither's home run, but Freeman field tied it up again in the ninth. In the 14th Notre Dame scored the winning run when Reither walked, went to third on a two base wild throw and came in on Frank Gilhooley's grounder to short.

CANADIAN NINE BEATS YANKS ON HOMER IN LONDON

LONDON, June 4—(AP).—A crowd of 20,000 in Wembley stadium saw Sgt. E. F. Smith of Kingston, Ont., captain and catcher for the Canadian military headquarters baseball team, break up the game with a fifth inning four-run homer that gave the Canadians a 4 to 1 victory over the United States army central base section team today. The Americans scored their run in the third inning of the five-inning game.

SOX VICTORY IN A CLOUD OF DUST!



Victory for the White Sox in a cloud of dust and flashing spikes at home plate in the 10th inning of the first game of yesterday's double header with the Senators in Comiskey park! Out! is Umpire Bill Grieve's first verdict. But Hodgin kicked the ball out of Catcher Rick Ferrell's grasp and that was the ball game—6 to 5 for the fast moving Sox. They won the second game, 9 to 1, and vaulted into fourth place. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lincoln Fields Mutuels May Top 1943 Total by 7 Millions

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Lincoln Fields starts its semi-final week of racing at Hawthorne today with just a couple more afternoons of average business needed to equal the entire pari-mutuel handle of last year's 30 day spring meeting.

In 1943, the meeting, which was transferred from Crete to the Stickney racing plant for the first time, showed wagering amounting to $14,386,173. At the close of Saturday's eight race program the current session's betting hit $12,596,263, an average of over $740,000 a day for the 17 days. The meeting has 12 days remaining, closing on Saturday, June 17. At the present rate the total increase over last spring will amount to more than $7,000,000.

La Salle Eligibles Race Today.

Another eager gathering is expected this afternoon to witness one of the track's best programs, a card including four allowance events which have drawn some of the best thorobreds at the track. Two eligibles for Saturday's $5,000 added La Salle Handicap also will go to the post, Brief Sigh in the six and one-half furlong Hammond, and Bold Captain in the Calumet at a mile and 70 yards.

Twenty-four have been nominated for the La Salle. Besides Brief Sigh and Bold Captain, the field includes John Marsch's Jezrahel, a Futurity winner at Arlington Park last year; Mrs. Robert McGarvey's Night Shadow, which lost by a nose to Quizzle in the Peabody handicap on Memorial day; Brolite farm's Challenge Me and Winter Rules, Circle W stable's Devalue, Mrs. E. Denemark's Fire Dust, Howard Wells' Equifox, and Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put.

In the meantime, Arlington and Washington Park officials are preparing for their meeting which opens June 19 for 70 days at the Homewood track. This includes THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S week of racing for charity, July 3 to 7, the feature of which will be the running of the $50,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap on July 4.

Howard's Horses to Run.

Right now the management is concentrating on obtaining strong racing representation from California. Stall reservations for 19 horses have been made by Hurst Philpot, a former jockey who will handle seven or eight thorobreds belonging to Charles S. Howard. Included are Federal Agent, entered for the Arlington Classic; Ship of State and Phar Marine, Futurity eligibles, and Alaska Queen, named for the Arlington Lassie and the Princess Pat filly stakes. Sea Biscuit is the sire of these youngsters.

Trainer E. L. Fitzgerald has listed 10 horses to carry Norman W. Church's colors. Proclamation, a $5,000 Blenheim-Heralder colt purchase, and Quick Reward by Reaping Reward-Fast Strike, are the Church candidates for the Arlington Futurity on July 15, and the Washington Park Futurity on Sept. 2.

Vernon Kennedy Suspended for Insubordination

Cleveland, O., June 4 (AP).—Vernon Kennedy, 35 year old Cleveland Indian hurler, has been suspended indefinitely without pay "for insubordination and an attitude detrimental to the best interests of the team," Manager Boudreau announced tonight.

Vernon Kennedy.

Boudreau declined to elaborate on the announcement or give the reason for the suspension.

Kennedy is in his third season with Cleveland. He won 10 and lost seven games last year. This year his record stands at two won and two lost.

BONNIE BROOK SETS GOLF PACE ON PUBLIC LINKS

The Bonnie Brook eight-man team from Waukegan went into the lead in the Illinois public links golf matches yesterday by scoring 61 points on the Waveland course in Lincoln park. The Mid-City team scored 39½ points, Lincoln park host team, 28½ points, and the Columbus park team, 15 points. The next match in public links is scheduled for Columbus park on Sunday, June 18. Low scorers yesterday:

Mike Stolarik, Bonnie Brook, 78; Mike Polacki, Mid-City, 78; Mike Berro, Lincoln Park, 79; and Joe Sicolak, Bonnie Brook, 79.

BEAT SENATORS IN TENTH, 6-5; THEN A 9-1 ROUT

Victory Chain Now Has Six Links.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

It was a grand day for most of the 20,508 who paid to see the White Sox-Washington double header in Comiskey park yesterday. In a perfect weather setting they saw the Chicagoans run their winning streak to six straight, 6 to 5 in the 10 inning first game, and 9 to 1 in the second affair.

When the Senators came to town Friday they were tied for third place and the Sox were in the cellar. When the Senators limped east last night they were in the American league basement and the Sox were in fourth place. Among the teams the Sox leaped past yesterday were the Boston Red Sox, who have beaten the White Sox seven out of seven, if you can figure that out.

In the big day, the Sox gained on every team in the league and now are only four games out of first place. They are trailing the second place Yankees by two and a half games and the third place Tigers, their next foe, by only a game and a half.

Sox Pitching Is Tops.

The afternoon started out as the it were going to be one of considerable disappointments. But after Orval Grove had got a lot of bad pitching out of his system, the fans witnessed some almost perfect work, by Johnny Humphries and Gordon Maltzberger in the first game and a fine job in the second one by Lefty Ed Lopat.

Grey Clarke, American association batting champion last year, absent most of this season because of injuries, sizzling Eddie Carnett, and Tom Turner were the batting stars. Clarke made two doubles in each game. He drove in four runs in the sixth and seventh innings of the second game. Carnett made four singles in the first game and one in the second game. Turner produced the winning run in the second game with a homer in the second inning, doubled in the fifth inning, and drove in a run with a single his third time up.

It's No. 5 for Maltzberger.

Grove yielded 10 hits, which included a third inning homer by George Case, and six singles in the fraction of the fourth inning before he was led away. Subsequently Humphries held the Senators hitless for the remaining 5⅓ innings of regular time. Maltzberger pitched the tenth inning and was rewarded with his fifth victory.

Case drove one of Grove's offerings into the left field lower deck. Orval walked George Myatt and tossed a double to Powell, which scored Myatt. Grove managed to retire Stan Spence and Joe Kuhel in the third, but the surcease was brief. Six singles rattled off Washington bats in the fourth inning before Skipper Jim Dykes held a conference with his board of strategy, and decided Orval was serving strictly batting practice stuff.

Six Hits; Grove Departs.

The six hits in the fourth were made in a row, except for a double play which Grove started after a barehanded capture of Pitcher John Niggeling's attempted sacrifice. There were singles by Hillis Layne, Ferrell, and Johnny Sullivan before the double play and singles by Case, Myatt, and Powell afterwards. Humphries went in and got the side out with three runs home and the Senators ahead, 5 to 0.

The Sox busted loose for two runs in the fourth, after two were out, on Hodgin's double, Carnett's single, and Clarke's double. Chicago added a third run in the sixth. Thurman Tucker walked with one down, paused while Hodgin flied out, then scored from first on Carnett's single to right.

Win on Ferrell's Error.

The Sox tied it up in the seventh. Tresh opened with a single to right and Webb walked. Humphries sacrificed and Moses singled to right for two runs.

And here's the way the game was broken up in the tenth: After Roger Wolff fanned Tucker, Hodgin singled and went to third on Carnett's fourth successive hit. After Clarke was given an intentional pass, loading the bases, Tresh lined to Jake Powell. The shot caught Hodgin far from the touchup at third and by the time he got home Rick Ferrell was waiting with the ball. But Ralph made up for his base running lapse by hitting Ferrell so hard that Rick dropped the ball.

Sox Turn on Power.

The Senators scored their lone run in the first inning of the second game, but Wally Moses led off the Sox half with a double, moved up on LeRoy Schalk's sacrifice and scored the tying run on Tucker's infield out. The Sox went ahead to stay in the second when Turner knocked his second 1944 homer, a drive into the left field lower deck.

Turner doubled at the start of the fifth but was left on third. He came

WHITE SOX PLAY SOLDIERS TODAY

Fort Sheridan Faces 1st Big League Foe.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Fort Sheridan's baseball representatives will make their 1944 debut against a major league team today when they meet the Chicago White Sox at the army post on the North Shore.

Lt. John Phipps, player-coach of the Soldiers, yesterday said he will field his best lineup for the game. He named Bob Essex, 6 foot 3 inch right hander, who formerly pitched for the Green Bay Bluejays, for the starting mound assignment. Phipps, who also is athletic officer, will be behind the plate.

Names Starting Team.

The infield will include Jerry Morrissey at first, Bruno Somenzi, second; Sam Volpe, shortstop, and Ed Jankaus at third. The latter, ex-Notre Dame athlete, hails from Chicago.

Outfielders will be Owen Niemi, Eveleth, Minn., Tony Pacotti, Kincaid, Ill., and Sokaye Kojima, Los Angeles.

Niemi, Western conference batting champion while attending Minnesota in 1941 and 1942, is a new addition to the team. He recently was transferred from Camp Seibert, Ala., where he played on the post team last season.

Sox to Use Haynes.

Manager Jimmy Dykes plans to have Joe Haynes, lanky right hander, or Lefty Jake Wade pitch for the White Sox. Haynes, son-in-law of Clark Griffith, is rounding into shape after a spell of sickness. He did a fine job of relief pitching, his first of the campaign, against Washington three weeks ago.

White Sox Show Big Increase at Gate Over 1943

The White Sox yesterday announced comparative atendance figures for their games this year and last to date. Here is the official paid tabulation:

First 17 home games 1944	140,615
First 18 home games 1943	85,465
First 24 road games 1944	133,822
First 25 road games 1943	161,394

The 18th home game will be played in Comiskey park Wednesday night when the Sox will meet the Detroit Tigers.

Tom Jordan, catcher, purchased from the Waterloo, Iowa club after he led the three-I league in home runs in 1942, reported to the White Sox yesterday. He had spent the interim on his Roswell, N. M., farm.

back with a single in the next inning to round out a three run splurge. With one down Tucker beat out an infield single and Hodgin was hit by a pitched ball. Carnett fouled out, but Clarke sent a long fly which Spence lost in the sun. The ball fell for a double and Tucker and Hodgin scored. Turner's single to center scored Clarke.

With one down in the seventh, Moses beat out an infield single and went to third while Schalk was rolling a grounder between Myatt's heels. Wally scored on Tucker's infield out. Guy Curtright walked, then Carnett singled, scoring Schalk. Clarke knocked another double, scoring Curtright and Carnett.

MONARCHS AND PAIGE WIN OVER FIREMEN, 4 TO 3

Leroy [Satchel] Paige of the Kansas City Monarchs yesterday yielded only two hits in the six innings he pitched against the Chicago Firemen before a crowd of 18,000 in Wrigley field. The Monarchs won, 4 to 3, in 10 innings to give the Firemen their first defeat of the season.

Paige struck out 11 men during the time he pitched and walked one. When he left the game, the Monarchs were leading, 2 to 0, but the Firemen went ahead in the seventh, 3 to 2, on four hits and a walk. The Monarchs tied the score in the eighth and won the game in the tenth, after two were out, when Norman Young scored on an error. Jack Matchett, the fourth pitcher used by the Monarchs, received credit for the victory.

Cubs Defeat Dodgers, 6-5, Then Tie, 8 to 8

Walker's throw in went wild, Pafko counted, too.

Chipman Rescues Flowers.

This was where Chipman came to the rescue of Flowers. Galan recaptured two of these runs in the home half by unfurling his homer after Chipman had singled.

Then with one out in the eighth Galan and Olmo singled and went galloping home on Walker's double down the left field line, giving the Dodgers the 5 to 4 edge which the Cubs quickly converted into a success of their own.

Erickson issued no fewer than three passes in the opening inning of the second game and that explains to some extent just why the Dodgers were made temporarily happy with two runs. Bordagaray walked, Galan singled, Olmo sacrificed and Walker drew a more or less intentional pass. Bolling doubled the two runs home. Erickson filled 'em up again by walking Hayworth, the latter having taken over the Dodgers' catching in the first inning when Mickey Owen was cracked on the right thumb by a foul. However, Big Ole set down the next two opponents.

Cubs Enjoy 4-Run Rally.

The Cubs' four run blast against Gregg in the third began with Hughes doubling after two were out. Cavarretta tied it up with his No. 3 homer over the right field wall. Nicholson singled and Pafko sent his No. 2 homer into the left field seats, making it 4 to 2.

Erickson walked with two out in the fourth, and this put the second four run incident under way. Schuster singled and Hughes walked. Cavarretta also received a gift from Gregg, Erickson scoring. Then Nicholson hoisted a high fly to right center but Walker and Olmo did one of those Alphonso-Gaston acts so the ball dropped for a triple, three runs scoring.

Passeau Relieves Erickson.

Hughes fumbled Basinski's fast grounder with one out in the sixth and Paul Waner, batting for Gregg, drew a walk as did Bordagaray. Galan let go with a single that scored a pair and also retired Erickson. Rescuer Passeau nailed Olmo on a fly ball, but it had enough length to score Bordagaray. Singles by Walker and Bolling moved Galan to the plate to shave the Cubs down to a two run lead. The lead was further reduced in the eighth when Galan doubled and scored on a couple of outs. Then they tied it in the ninth when with two on bases, and two out Johnson fumbled Galan's hopper.

Vikings Beat Hansas, 5 to 1; Stay in Race

BY OFFSIDE.

The Vikings, playing without three injured players, Al O'Hara, Gus Whilborg, and Jimmy McDermott, defeated Hansa, 5 to 1, yesterday in Winnemac park stadium to keep in the running for the major league soccer title.

The Vikings scored in the first two minutes of play, Nels Daiquist tallying after taking a pass from Bill List. The latter scored again a few minutes later and Hans Jensen gave the Vikings a three-goal lead before the intermission by scoring from 30 yards out.

List scored from penalty in the second period for his second goal and six minutes later Dalquist gave the victors their final tally. The Hansas' only goal came with 12 minutes to play when Kurt Jotzat counted on a pass from August Coeller.

In the first division, the Necaxa won over the Kickers, 3 to 1, and Hakoah Centers blanked the Polish Olympia, 5 to 0. The winners will meet in a playoff for the championship in two weeks. Yesterday's scores:

GUSTY WINS AS BOATS FALL PREY TO GUSTY WINDS

Ralph Rogers' 22 foot yacht Gusty was in its element yesterday, leading Sheridan Shore Yacht club sloops in a windy race off Wilmette harbor. Skipper Rogers and his crew, Harris Barber, continued their unbeaten season record by covering the 10 mile windward-leeward course in 1 hour, 32 minutes, and 3 seconds.

The strong winds dismasted Fram, Don Deno's Star boat which was following the racers.

Altara, Robert A. Hess' Star class racer, won the Jackson Park Yacht club's race off Jackson Park harbor.

Bonnie Lassie, Otis Duncan's Star boat, was dismasted during the race and was towed into the harbor by the race committee boat Valiant, owned by Weldon Smith, treasurer of the club.

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH.

Please supply information on Elgin National Watch company, including its post-war prospects.—P. R.

Answer: Manufacture of civilian watches in the United States has been suspended or greatly curtailed since June, 1942. Despite continued limited production for members of the military services and increased importation of Swiss watches, reports from the retail trade indicate an accumulating demand of considerable proportions.

The company's report for 1943, however, emphasized the adverse effect of watch imports on its post-war outlook. Unofficial reports, the company said, were that such imports in 1943 were almost three times those of normal years.

Elgin has reported profitable operations each year since 1933. Earnings per share were $2.85 in 1943, $2.81 in 1942, $3.88 in 1941, $3.85 in 1940, $3.04 in 1939, $1.71 in 1938, and $3.49 in 1937.

The company, normally one of the largest makers of watch movements, is at present engaged almost entirely in war production, largely consisting of precision parts and assemblies and including timepieces for government account.

There are 400,000 shares of capital stock outstanding, par value $15, with no preferred stock or funded debt. Current assets at the close of 1943 totaled $18,288,243, including $1,585,698 cash and $5,003,570 marketable securities. Dividend payments, at varying rates, have been made each year since 1935, following a lapse during the depression years 1932-'34. Previously the company had an unbroken record of payments to stockholders since 1903. Distributions totaled $2 a share in 1942 and 1943, and $3 in 1940 and 1941.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

WARN SPENDING CUT ALONE CAN SAVE ECONOMY

Chamber Told Tax Level Must Fall.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 4.—With tax reductions its objective, the finance committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today instituted a new drive to force a curtailment in all government spending not absolutely essential to winning the war.

Warning that prolonged continuation of the present level of taxation "would spell destruction of the American social and political system," the committee urged immediate tightening of controls over federal spending.

Drastic Cut Demanded.

The committee asserted in a report to the chamber's board of directors that congress not only has the "opportunity but the responsibility" of effecting drastic reductions in government spending as a necessary prelude to a sound post-war tax and fiscal program.

"It is not merely the wasteful and extravagant expenditures that must go," the committee declared. "There will be many governmental functions which would be intrinsically desirable but which must be foregone because of their cost.

"Every function of government will have to be re-examined and appraised in relation to cost. The national government will have to limit its activities to what it can afford."

Lists 3 Main Objectives.

The committee made 14 specific recommendations in its report grouped around these three major objectives:

1. Improvement of the organization and machinery relied upon by congress for controling expenditures.

2. Recommendations for substantive legislation designed to reduce governmental costs.

3. Reduction of the pressure for expenditures by local groups advocating increased appropriations.

Asserting that when the war ends the United States will have a debt so large that its annual interest charges alone will exceed the total cost of all governmental functions in any peacetime year prior to 1934, the committee recommended that congress quit denying itself that which it has given the executive agencies—the benefit of expert assistance in examining monetary requirements.

HALL PRINTING'S EARNINGS DIP, VOLUME GAINS

The W. F. Hall Printing company had net income of $1,031,761, equal to $2.66 per share, in its fiscal year ended March 31, compared with $1,102,000, or $2.84 a share, in the preceding fiscal year, Alfred B. Geiger, president, reported yesterday. Altho business volume increased, earnings were affected by the increased costs of production, he said.

Material shortages continue acute, he said, and labor and personnel turnover is high. Replacements must be drawn from sources previously untapped by printing companies, he added.

New Heat Resistant Plastic Made by Monsanto Chemical

New York, June 4 [Special].—The development of a new thermoplastic, the first that holds its shape and strength in boiling water, was announced today by Charles Belknap, president of Monsanto Chemical company. He said it can be molded by speedy, economical methods.

The new plastic opens a new field of industrial and household applications thru its ability to withstand sterilization, Belknap said. It has been produced experimentally at Monsanto for some time and is in wide use in war work, particularly in electronic equipment where light weight and heat resistant properties are required, he said.

Expect Wide Variety of Uses.

After the war a wide range of civilian applications is expected wherever high heat resistant qualities are needed, especially in dishes and utensils subject to boiling water.

The plastic, known as Cerex, is the result of research begun six years ago in the company's laboratories in Dayton, O. and Springfield, Mass., to develop plastics and other synthetic chemicals from petroleum sources, Belknap said.

The acid and alkali resistance of the new plastic at high temperatures is believed to be superior to any other, he asserted. It has been subjected to boiling sulfuric acid without effect, and parts molded of it have withstood conditions that corroded enameled steel and attacked the surface of aluminum, he explained.

Low in Absorption.

The plastic is one of two classes of materials developed to meet requirements of a fully moldable thermoplastic requiring no addition of plasticizers, with low water absorption and a minimum heat distortion point of 212 degrees Fahrenheit. The other, designated as Styramic HT, is a specialized high cost material of importance in super high frequency insulation, made under secret orders.

Belknap said Cerex contains carbon, hydrogen, and nitrogen, and has a transparent amber color. In flammability tests, the material is rated as slow burning.

He listed 173 potential applications for the plastic, from dictaphones, automobile heaters, and vacuum cleaners to bookends, compasses, and hydraulic pistons.

ARMOUR QUITS ARMY PRICING BOARD; POST GIVEN TO L. A. MILLER

Col. John G. Salsman, supervisor of the army air forces material command in Chicago, yesterday announced the resignation of Philip D. Armour as chairman of the district price adjustment board and the appointment of L. A. Miller as his successor.

Armour directed the organization of the price adjustment section and has been chairman since the creation of the midcentral procurement district. He resigned because of the press of other duties, but will continue as a member of the board. Miller, formerly president of Willys-Overland Motors, has been deputy regional director of the WPB.

L. A. Miller.

Col. Salsman also announced the appointment of Harry McLerie, former president of Swift International, and a negotiator for the price adjustment board, as a member of the board.

THRIVING RUBBER INDUSTRY AFTER WAR PREDICTED

Akron, O., June 4 (AP).—Rubber Director Bradley Dewey today predicted the synthetic rubber industry would continue to thrive after the war because of industrialization of South America, China, Russia and other countries. He spoke at Akron university's commencement exercises at which he was awarded an honorary doctor of science degree.

World demand for rubber "far beyond capacity of [rubber] plantations before the war will be one result of the inevitable industrialization of South America, Russia, China, India and parts of North Africa and the East Indies that will follow the war," he declared.

Advise Truck Operators to Order Parts in Advance

The office of defense transportation yesterday urged bus and truck operators to anticipate their needs for mechanical replacements and to place orders with their dealers several months in advance. Parts makers and dealers thus would be better able to estimate demand and maintain adequate supplies, explained W. J. Cumming, maintenance chief of the ODT's highway transport department.
